Insurance Corporations

138. (1) Insurance corporations — It is hereby declared that a corporation, whether or not it is a mutual corporation, that has, in a taxation year, been a party to insurance contracts or other arrangements or relationships of a particular class whereby it can reasonably be regarded as undertaking

(a) to insure other persons against loss, damage or expense of any kind, or

(b) to pay insurance moneys to other persons

(i) on the death of any person,

(ii) on the happening of an event or contingency dependent on human life,

(iii) for a term dependent on human life, or

(iv) at a fixed or determinable future time,

whether or not such persons are members or shareholders of the corporation, shall, regardless of the form or legal effect of those contracts, arrangements or relationships, be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, to have been carrying on an insurance business of that class in the year for profit, and in any such case, for the purpose of computing the income of the corporation, the following rules apply:

(c) every amount received by the corporation under, in consideration of, in respect of or on account of such a contract, arrangement or relationship shall be deemed to have been received by it in the course of that business,

(d) the income shall, except as otherwise provided in this section, be computed in accordance with the rules applicable in computing income for the purposes of this Part,

(e) all income from property vested in the corporation shall be deemed to be income of the corporation, and

(f) all taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from dispositions of property vested in the corporation shall be deemed to be taxable capital gains or allowable capital losses, as the case may be, of the corporation.

(2) Insurer's income or loss — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where a life insurer resident in Canada carries on an insurance business in Canada and in a country other than Canada in a taxation year

(a) its income or loss for the year from carrying on an insurance business is the amount of its income or loss for the year, computed in accordance with this Act, from the business in Canada; and

(b) no amount shall be included in computing its income for the year in respect of its taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from dispositions of property (other than property disposed of in a taxation year in which it was designated insurance property) of the insurer used or held by it in the course of carrying on an insurance business.

Proposed Amendment — 138(2)

(2) Insurer's income or loss — For greater certainty, if a life insurer resident in Canada carries on an insurance business in Canada and in a country other than Canada in a taxation year, its income or loss for the year from carrying on an insurance business is the amount that would be its income or loss for the year from the business carried on in Canada if no amount were included

(a) in respect of its gross investment revenue for the year from its property (other than property that was designated insurance property for the year) used or held by it in the course of carrying on an insurance business; and

(b) in respect of taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from dispositions of its property (other than designated insurance property for the taxation year in which it disposed of the property) used or held by it in the course of carrying on an insurance business.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 77(1), will amend subsec. 138(2) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after 1999.

Technical Notes: Subsection 138(2) provides rules relating to the calculation of the income of a resident life insurer that carries on an insurance business in Canada and in a country outside Canada in a taxation year.

Paragraph 138(2)(a) provides that the resident life insurer's income or loss for a taxation year from an insurance business carried on both inside and outside Canada by the insurer is the insurer's income or loss for the year from carrying on that insurance business in Canada. Resident life insurers are, therefore, not subject to Canadian tax on their foreign insurance business income.

Paragraph 138(2)(b) provides that taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from dispositions of property that are not designated insurance property are not included in computing the resident life insurer's income where the property is used or held in the course of carrying on its insurance business.

The expression "designated insurance property" is defined in subsection 138(12) and in section 2401 of the Regulations.

Subsection 138(2) is amended in the following ways.

First, it is amended to ensure that the gross investment revenue from property of a resident life insurer will be included in computing the insurer's income from its insurance business in Canada only where the property is a designated insurance property of the insurer for the year. Second, it is amended to ensure that taxable capital gains and allowable losses from dispositions of the insurer's property used or held by the insurer in the course of carrying on an insurance business will be included in computing the insurer's income for a taxation year from its insurance business in Canada only where the property disposed of was designated insurance property for the taxation year in which the insurer disposed of the property.

The definition "designated insurance property" in subsection 248(1) adopts the definition in subsection 138(12).

Letter from Department of Finance, May 7, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

We are responding to your letter of March 23, 2001 seeking confirmation that we are intending to recommend to the Minister of Finance (the "Minister") amendments to the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to ensure that gross investment revenue is included in computing the income of multinational life insurers resident in Canada (and non-resident multinational insurers) from carrying on an insurance business in Canada only to the extent such gross investment revenue is derived from "designated insurance property", as defined in the Act.

We can confirm that we are intending to recommend to the Minister that subsections 138(2) and (9) of the Act be amended. The amendment will clarify that only the gross investment revenue derived by the insurer from "designated insurance property" of the insurer in respect of the insurance business carried on in Canada will be included in the income of the insurer from that insurance business. If adopted it will be recommended that the amendments be effective for taxation years ending after 1999.

We hope this addresses your concerns.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein

Letter from Department of Finance, January 8, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

We are responding to your letter of October 11th, 2000, to Mr. Wally Conway concerning sections 95 and 138 of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

In your letter you expressed concern about the recent decision of the Tax Court of Canada in Munich Reinsurance Company (Canada Branch) v. The Queen [affirmed by the Federal Court of Appeal, [2002] 1 C.T.C. 199 — ed.], where it interpreted subsection 138(9) as not being a complete code with respect to the inclusion of investment income in a multinational insurer's income from carrying on an insurance business in Canada. Instead the court applied the general rules in the Act in determining whether income from a property was income of the insurer from its insurance business carried on in Canada.

You are concerned that, as a result of this decision, the intent of subsections 138(2) and (9) will be ignored and a multinational insurer will be required to include in its income from an insurance business carried on in Canada, its gross investment revenue from investment property that is not designated insurance property in respect of that business but is property factually used or held in that business. Consequently, you are requesting clarifying amendments to subsections 138(2) and (9) of the Act.

We are sympathetic to this request and will recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsections 138(2) and (9) be amended. The amendment will clarify that only the gross investment revenue derived by the insurer from "designated insurance property" of the insurer in respect of the insurance business carried on in Canada will be included in the income of the insurer from that insurance business. The amendments will be effective for taxation years ending after 1999. . .

Thank you for bringing these matters to our attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Repeal — 138(11.91)(f)

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 77(3), will repeal para. 138(11.91)(f), applicable to taxation years that end after 1999.

Technical Notes: Subsection 138(11.91) provides rules for the purpose of computing the income of a non-resident insurer that at any time in a particular taxation year commences to carry on business in Canada or that ceases to be exempt from tax under Part I of the Act.

Paragraph 138(11.91)(f) of the English Version of the Act applies where the non-resident insurer's capital cost of a depreciable property exceeds the property's fair market value immediately before the commencement of the particular taxation year. To ensure that on a later disposition of the property the non-resident insurer is subject to recapture of any excess capital cost allowance claimed before the particular taxation year, this paragraph preserves the property's capital cost, and treats the excess as having been allowed as capital cost allowance.

Since it is inappropriate to provide for the recapture of capital cost allowance that was claimed when the business was not carried on in Canada or when the non-resident insurer was exempt from tax under Part I of the Act, paragraph 138(11.91)(f) of the English version of the Act is repealed.

138.1 (1) Rules relating to segregated funds — In respect of life insurance policies for which all or any portion of an insurer's reserves vary in amount depending on the fair market value of a specified group of properties (in this section referred to as a "segregated fund"), for the purposes of this Part, the following rules apply:

(a) an inter vivos trust (in this section referred to as the "related segregated fund trust") is deemed to be created at the time that is the later of

(i) the day that the segregated fund is created, and

(ii) the day on which the insurer's 1978 taxation year commences, and to continue in existence throughout the period during which the fund determines any portion of the benefits under those policies that vary in amount depending on the fair market value of the property in the segregated fund (in this section referred to as "segregated fund policies");

(b) property that has been allocated to and that remains a part of the segregated fund, and any income that has accrued on that property is deemed to be the property and income of the related segregated fund trust and not to be the property and income of the insurer;

(c) the insurer is deemed to be

(i) the trustee who has ownership or control of the related segregated fund trust property,

(ii) a resident of Canada in respect of the related segregated fund trust property used or held by it in the course of carrying on the insurer's life insurance business in Canada, and

(iii) a non-resident of Canada in respect of the related segregated fund trust property not used or held by it in the course of carrying on the insurer's life insurance business in Canada;

(d) where at a particular time there is property in the segregated fund that was not funded with premiums paid under a segregated fund policy,

(i) the insurer is deemed to have an interest in the related segregated fund trust that is not in respect of any particular property or source of income, and

(ii) the cost at any time of that interest to the insurer is deemed to be the total of

(A) for property of the trust at that time allocated by the insurer to the segregated fund prior to 1978, the amount that would be its adjusted cost base to the insurer if the interest had been a capital property at all relevant times prior to 1978 and if the rules in this section had been applicable for the taxation years after 1971 and before 1978, and

(B) for property of the trust at that time allocated by the insurer to the segregated fund after 1977, the fair market value of the property at the time it was last allocated to the segregated fund by the insurer;

(e) where at any particular time there is property in the segregated fund that was funded with a portion of the premiums paid before that time under a segregated fund policy,

(i) the respective segregated fund policyholder is deemed to have an interest in the related segregated fund trust that is not in respect of any particular property or source of income,

(ii) the cost of that interest is deemed to be the amount that is the total of

(A) the amount that would be its adjusted cost base to the insurer at December 31, 1977 if the interest had been a capital property at all relevant times prior to 1978 and if the rules in this section (if subsection (3) were read without reference to the expressions "or capital loss" and "or loss") had been applicable for taxation years after 1971 and before 1978, and

(B) the total of amounts each of which is that portion of a premium paid before that time and after the day referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii) under a segregated fund policy that was or is to be used by the insurer to fund property allocated to the segregated fund (other than the portion of the premium that is an acquisition fee), and

(iii) the portion of a premium included in a segregated fund is deemed not to be an amount paid in respect of a premium under the policy;

(f) the income of the related segregated fund trust is deemed for the purposes of subsections 104(6), (13) and (24) to be an amount that has become payable in the year to the beneficiaries under the segregated fund trust and the amount therefor in respect of any particular beneficiary is equal to the amount determined by reference to the terms and conditions of the segregated fund policy;

(g) where at a particular time the fair market value of property transferred by the insurer to the segregated fund results in an increase at that time in the portion of the insurer's reserves for a segregated fund policy held by a policyholder that vary with the fair market value of the segregated fund and a decrease in the portion of its reserves for the policy that do not so vary, the amount of that increase shall,

(i) for the purpose of the determination of H in the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9), be deemed to be proceeds of disposition that the policyholder became entitled to receive at that time,

(ii) for the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to the policyholder of the policyholder's interest in the related segregated fund trust, be added at that time to the cost to the policyholder of that interest, and

(iii) for the purpose of computing the insurer's income, be deemed to be a payment under the terms and conditions of the policy at that time;

(h) where at a particular time the fair market value of property transferred by the insurer from the segregated fund results in an increase at that time in the portion of the insurer's reserves for a segregated fund policy that do not vary with the fair market value of the segregated fund and a decrease in the portion of its reserves for the policy that so vary, the amount of that increase shall, for the purpose of calculating the insurer's income, be deemed to be a premium received by the insurer at that time;

(i) where at a particular time the policyholder of a segregated fund policy disposes of all or a portion of the policyholder's interest in the related segregated fund trust, that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the acquisition fee with respect to the particular policy exceeds the total of amounts each of which is an amount determined under this paragraph with respect to the particular policy before that time, that

(i) the fair market value of the interest disposed of at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of the policyholder's interest in the particular segregated fund trust immediately before that time,

is deemed to be a capital loss of the related segregated fund trust that reduces the policyholder's benefits under the particular policy by that amount for the purposes of subsection (3);

(j) the obligations of an insurer in respect of a benefit that is payable under a segregated fund policy, the amount of which benefit varies with the fair market value of the segregated fund at the time the benefit becomes payable, are deemed to be obligations of the trustee under the related segregated fund trust and not of the insurer and any amount received by the policyholder or that the policyholder became entitled to receive at any particular time in a year in respect of those obligations is deemed to be proceeds from the disposition of an interest in the related segregated fund trust;

(k) a reference to "the terms and conditions of the trust arrangement" in section 104 or subsection 127.2(3) is deemed to include a reference to the terms and conditions of the related segregated fund policy and the trustee is deemed to have designated the amounts referred to in that section in accordance with those terms and conditions; and

(l) where at any time an insurer acquires a share as a first registered holder thereof and allocates the share to a related segregated fund trust, the trust shall be deemed to have acquired the share at that time as the first registered holder thereof for the purpose of computing its share-purchase tax credit and the insurer shall be deemed not to have acquired the share for the purpose of computing its share-purchase tax credit.

Proposed Amendment — 142.2(1)"mark-to-market property" — Acquisition of control

Letter from Department of Finance, July 25, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in reply to your letter to Mr. Stephen Richardson dated February 21, 2002 in which you have requested that an amendment be made to the mark-to-market rules in the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to provide for an exemption from those rules in the case where a taxpayer holds shares of a corporation and is in the process of carrying out a plan of action to acquire control of the corporation.

The expression "mark-to-market property" is defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act. A share of a corporation in which a taxpayer has a "significant interest" at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer is excluded from the definition "mark-to-market property" of the taxpayer for the year. In this regard, subsection 142.2(2) of the Act provides that a taxpayer is considered to have a "significant interest" in a corporation at any time if at that time the taxpayer is related to the corporation (ignoring any rights described in paragraph 251(5)(b)) or if at that time the taxpayer holds shares of the corporation the fair market value of which represents at least 10% of the fair market value of all issued shares.

In your letter, you suggested that subsection 142.2(2) be amended so that a taxpayer would be considered to have a "significant interest" in a corporation at any time at which the taxpayer is carrying out a plan of action to acquire control of the corporation. Your letter also suggested certain other amendments which would accommodate various types of plans of action. However, we understand that your direct concern relates to the acquisition of control situation. In our view, it would be appropriate to exclude, from being a mark-to-market property for a particular taxation year, shares of a corporation held by a taxpayer at any time in the particular year where control was acquired in that year or in the subsequent taxation year.

We are therefore prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to provide that, where a taxpayer, alone or together with persons related to the taxpayer (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)), acquires control of a corporation in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2001, the taxpayer may elect to treat any shares of the corporation held by the taxpayer in the immediately preceding taxation year as not being mark-to-market property.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

Proposed Amendment — Deemed disposition on losing prescribed-property status

Letter from Department of Finance, August 14, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to the requests made of the Department by representatives of the [xxx] in conversations with officials of the Department and in the electronic mail dated July 22, 2002 that you sent to Mr. Wallace Conway.

You have informed us that, pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement, all of the common shareholders of the [xxx] will transfer their shares of [xxx] to a new corporation, [xxx]. In exchange for the transfer of the shares of [xxx] the shareholders will receive common shares of [xxx]. Thus, initially, the common shareholders of [xxx] will become the common shareholders of [xxx] will become a wholly-owned subsidiary of [xxx]. On the same day that the share exchange is made, the class of common shares of [xxx] will be listed on the [xxx] and shares of that class will be offered to public investors through an initial public offering. At the time of listing, [xxx] will become a public corporation and, since the shares of [xxx] will not be listed on any stock exchange, [xxx] will not be a public corporation.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance amendments to the Income Tax Act and Regulations as set out in the following paragraphs. If our recommendations are accepted, the amendments will be presented to Parliament and the Governor in Council for consideration and approval. We specifically confirm the following matters:

- Based on what we have been told by representatives of [xxx] concerning the activities of [xxx], under our recommended amendments to the Income Tax Regulations, the shares of [xxx] will qualify as prescribed property for the purposes of the definition "mark-to-market property" in subsection 142.2(1) of the Income Tax Act (Act) up until the time at which they are exchanged for the shares of [xxx]
- Based on what we have been told by representatives of [xxx] concerning the activities of [xxx], under our recommended amendments to the Income Tax Regulations, the shares of [xxx] will not qualify as prescribed property for the purposes of the definition "mark-to-market property" in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act effective as of the time at which any class of shares of [xxx] is listed on any stock exchange.
- We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the mark-to-market property rules in the Act be modified to require a deemed disposition by a taxpayer of property at its fair market value immediately before the property loses its status as a prescribed property for the purposes of the definition "mark-to-market property" in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act. The property would be deemed to have been reacquired by the taxpayer, immediately after the time of the deemed disposition, at a cost equal to the amount of proceeds deemed to have been received by the taxpayer.
- The gains and losses of a taxpayer that arise as a result of a deemed disposition of a property (which occurs because that property loses its status as a prescribed property for the purposes of the definition "mark-to-market property" in subsection 142.2(1)) will be included in determining the taxpayer's income for the year in which the disposition occurs. Under our recommended amendments, taxpayers will not be permitted to defer the payment of any of the taxes attributable to the gains arising on the deemed disposition of the property.

I trust that this letter addresses all the requests made of the Department by [xxx]. If further assistance or clarification is required, do not hesitate to contact us.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

Additional Rules

142.6 (1) Becoming or ceasing to be a financial institution — Where, at a particular time after February 22, 1994, a taxpayer becomes or ceases to be a financial institution,

(a) where a taxation year of the taxpayer would not, but for this paragraph, end immediately before the particular time,

(i) except for the purpose of subsection 132(6.1), the taxpayer's taxation year that would otherwise have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time and a new taxation year of the taxpayer is deemed to have begun at that time, and

(ii) for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's fiscal period after the particular time, the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time;

(b) where the taxpayer becomes a financial institution, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed, immediately before the end of its taxation year that ends immediately before the particular time, of each property held by the taxpayer that is

(i) a specified debt obligation (other than a mark-to-market property for the year), or

(ii) where the year ends after October 30, 1994, a mark-to-market property for the year for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition;

Proposed Amendment — 142.6(1)(b)

(b) if the taxpayer becomes a financial institution, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed, immediately before the end of its particular taxation year that ends immediately before the particular time and for proceeds equal to its fair market value at that time, of each property held by the taxpayer that is

(i) a specified debt obligation (other than a specified debt obligation that is a mark-to-market property to which subparagraph (ii) applies), or

(ii) a mark-to-market property of the taxpayer for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the particular time but was not a mark-to-market property of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 78, will amend para. 142.6(1)(b) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 142.6(1) contains rules that apply where a taxpayer becomes (or ceases to be) a financial institution. This is most likely to happen where the change of status occurs because the taxpayer becomes (or ceases to be) controlled by a financial institution.

If a taxation year of the taxpayer does not end immediately before the time at which its status as a financial institution changes, subparagraph 142.6(1)(a)(i) deems the taxpayer's taxation year that would otherwise have included that time to end immediately before that time. A new taxation year begins at that time, and the taxpayer is permitted to adopt a new fiscal period. One purpose for the deemed year-end is to ensure the proper application, in taxation years in which the taxpayer is a financial institution, of the rules, commonly known as the mark-to-market rules,

- in section 142.3 for specified debt obligations, and
- in section 142.5 for market-to-market properties.

The expressions "financial institution", "specified debt obligation" and "mark-to-market property" are defined in section 142.2.

Paragraph 142.6(1)(b) applies where a taxpayer becomes a financial institution. This paragraph generally provides for a deemed disposition at fair market value of each property held by the taxpayer that is

- a specified debt obligation (other than a specified debt obligation that is a mark-to-market property to which subparagraph 142.6(1)(b)(ii) applies) [subpara. 142.6(1)(b)(i)], or
- a mark-to-market property for the particular year [subpara. 142.6(1)(b)(ii)].

This deemed disposition is intended to ensure that amounts brought, because of the mark-to-market rules in sections 142.3 and 142.5, into the taxpayer's income for the subsequent year (i.e., the taxation year that includes the time of the change in status) do not include gains or losses accrued before the beginning of that subsequent year.

Subparagraph 142.6(1)(b)(ii) is amended to ensure that this is achieved in connection with mark-to-market properties. Amended subparagraph 142.6(1)(b)(ii) results in the taxpayer being deemed to have disposed of, immediately before the end of a particular taxation year and for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the end of that year, property held by it that is a mark-to-market property for the subsequent year but was not a mark-to-market property for the particular year.

(c) where the taxpayer ceases to be a financial institution, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed, immediately before the end of its taxation year that ends immediately before the particular time, of each property held by the taxpayer that is a specified debt obligation (other than a mark-to-market property of the taxpayer for the year), for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition; and

(d) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have reacquired, at the end of the taxation year referred to in paragraph (b) or (c), each property deemed by that paragraph to have been disposed of by the taxpayer, at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition of the property.

(b) as part of the series of transactions or events, the taxpayer who acquired the debt obligation disposed of property before October 31, 1994; and

(c) it is reasonable to consider that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of the debt obligation by the taxpayer was to obtain a deduction because, as a consequence of the disposition referred to in paragraph (b),

(i) an amount was included in the taxpayer's income for any taxation year, or

(ii) an amount was subtracted from a balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts of the taxpayer and the subtracted amount exceeded the portion, if any, of the balance that could reasonably be considered to be in respect of the property.

(a) to have disposed of the property immediately before the time that was immediately before the particular time for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition; and

(b) to have reacquired the property at the particular time at a cost equal to those proceeds.

(a) the definition "mark-to-market property" in subsection 142.2(1) shall be applied as if the year ended immediately before the particular time referred to in subsection (1.1); and

(b) if the taxpayer does not have financial statements for the period ending immediately before the particular time referred to in subsection (1.1), references in the definition to financial statements for the year shall be read as references to the financial statements that it is reasonable to expect would have been prepared if the year had ended immediately before the particular time.

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of the property at the beginning of the particular year for proceeds equal to

(i) where subparagraph (ii) does not apply, the amount at which the property was valued at the end of the preceding taxation year for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year, and

(B) for the purpose of determining the consequences of the assumption of the obligation and any subsequent settlement or extinguishment of it, the value of the consideration given to the entrant bank for the assumption of the obligation, are deemed to be an amount (in this paragraph referred to as the "assumption amount") equal to the amount outstanding on account of the principal amount of the obligation at that time, and

(ii) the assumption amount shall not be considered a term of the transaction that differs from that which would have been made between persons dealing at arm's length solely because it is not equal to the fair market value of the obligation at that time;

(b) where the obligation is denominated in a foreign currency, and the Canadian affiliate and the entrant bank jointly elect in accordance with subsection (11) to have this paragraph apply,

(i) the amount of any income, loss, capital gain or capital loss in respect of the obligation due to the fluctuation in the value of the foreign currency relative to Canadian currency realized by

(A) the Canadian affiliate on the assumption of the obligation is deemed to be nil, and

(B) the entrant bank on the settlement or extinguishment of the obligation shall be determined based on the amount of the obligation in Canadian currency at the time it became an obligation of the Canadian affiliate, and

(ii) for the purpose of an election made in respect of the obligation under paragraph (a), the amount outstanding on account of the principal amount of the obligation at that time is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was advanced to the Canadian affiliate on account of principal, that remains outstanding at that time, and that is determined using the exchange rate that applied between the foreign currency and Canadian currency at the time of the advance; and

(c) for the purpose of applying paragraphs 20(1)(e) and (f) in respect of the debt obligation, the obligation is deemed not to have been settled or extinguished by virtue of its assumption by the entrant bank and the entrant bank is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the Canadian affiliate.

Proposed Addition — 142.7(8)(d)

(d) for the purpose of applying subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) in respect of the debt obligation, the obligation is deemed to have been issued by the entrant bank at the time that the obligation was issued by the Canadian affiliate.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 79, will add para. 142.7(8)(d), applicable after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes: Section 142.7 provides time-limited rules to facilitate foreign banks' transformation of certain Canadian operations, currently carried out through subsidiaries, into Canadian branches (known as "authorized foreign banks") of the foreign banks themselves.

When an authorized foreign bank assumes certain debt obligations of its Canadian affiliates, subsection 142.7(8) applies to govern the tax consequences of the assumption.

Subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) provides an exemption from Part XIII tax in respect of interest payments on certain long- and medium-term corporate debt. The exemption can depend upon, among other things, the time at which a debt is issued. New paragraph 142.7(8)(d) is added to treat, for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii), a debt obligation assumed by an authorized foreign bank from its Canadian affiliate as having been issued at the time that the debt was issued by the Canadian affiliate.

Letter from Department of Finance, December 18, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your letter of October 24, 2001, regarding the conversion rules of foreign bank branches, particularly subsection 142.7(8) and subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) of the Income Tax Act, as well as your letter of November 13, 2001 regarding the application of section 116 of the Act where an authorized foreign bank disposes of its property to a Canadian resident.

Conversion Rules

Subsection 142.7(8) provides the conversion rules for debt obligations assumed by an authorized foreign bank from its Canadian subsidiary, and subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) exempts from Part XIII non-resident withholding tax the interest paid to a non-resident by a corporation resident in Canada on certain long-term debts. Subsection 212(13.3), meanwhile, treats the branch as a resident of Canada for the purposes of Part XIII.

In your October letter, you note that paragraph 142.7(8)(c) deems the assumed debt not to have been settled or extinguished for the purposes of paragraphs 20(1)(e) and (f), but it does not do the same for the purposes of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii). You also suggest that the assumption of debt by an authorized foreign bank would result in a novation of that debt as the Canadian affiliate would have been totally discharged from it. In your opinion, when the novation took place there would be a new debt, which would not qualify for the exemption in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) if there were less than 5 years left on the debt.

You consider this to be an inappropriate result, and you request an amendment to subsection 142.7(8) to provide specifically that the above-described debt be deemed to continue in order to qualify for the subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) exemption.

We agree with your views on this point and are prepared to recommend amendments to ensure that, where an authorized foreign bank assumes the debts of its subsidiary, such debt will be deemed for the purposes of the subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) exemption to have been issued by the entrant bank at the same time that it was issued by the Canadian affiliate under the original terms and conditions.

I trust that the above will satisfy your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Technical Notes: Subsection 143(3.1) allows a communal organization that makes an election under subsection 143(2) to elect to have its total charitable, Crown, cultural and ecological gifts flowed through to those members (the "participating" members) of the congregation for whom an amount is included in income for the year under subsection 143(2).

Subsection 143(3.1) is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(30), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to refer to the "eligible amount" of a gift made because of a person being a participating member in the communal organization.

B is the amount determined for the year in respect of the member under paragraph (2)(a) as a consequence of an election under subsection (2) by the trust, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined for the year in respect of a participating member of the congregation under paragraph (2)(a) as a consequence of an election under subsection (2) by the trust.

Related Provisions: 248(30)–(33) — Determination of eligible amount.

History: Subsec. 143(3.1) amended by 2000, c. 19, subsec. 41(2), the opening words applicable to 1995 et seq. and paras. (a), (b) applicable to 1998 et seq. The subsec. formerly read:

(3.1) For the purposes of section 118.1, where the fair market value of a gift made in a taxation year by an inter vivos trust referred to in subsection (1) would, but for this subsection, be included in the total charitable gifts, total Crown gifts or total cultural gifts of the trust for the year and the trust so elects in its return of income under this Part for the year,

(a) the trust shall be deemed not to have made the gift; and

(b) each adult member of a family to whom an amount is deemed under subsection (2) to be payable in the year shall be deemed to have made, in the year, such a gift the fair market value of which is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value of the gift made by the trust,

B is the amount deemed under subsection (2) to be payable in the year in respect of the trust to the adult member, and

C is the total of all amounts deemed under subsection (2) to be payable in the year in respect of the trust to an adult member of a family.

(i) the limited-recourse amounts of

(A) the taxpayer, and

(B) all other taxpayers not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure,

(ii) the taxpayer's at-risk adjustment in respect of the expenditure, and

(iii) each limited-recourse amount and at-risk adjustment, determined under this section when this section is applied to each other taxpayer who deals at arm's length with and holds, directly or indirectly, an interest in the taxpayer, that can reasonably be considered to relate to the expenditure.

Department of Finance news release, December 5, 2003: These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See under 248(35)–(37) for full text of news release — ed.]

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, February 18, 2003: (17) That, after February 18, 2003,

(c) in respect of gifts and contributions, and representations, made after that date, an arrangement in respect of the making of a gift referred to in section 110.1 or 118.1 of the Act or a contribution referred to in subsection 127(4.1) of the Act be deemed to be a tax shelter if it may reasonably be considered that, having regard to representations made concerning the arrangement, a person will incur an indebtedness in respect of which recourse is limited; and

(d) for gifts and contributions made after that date pursuant to an arrangement described in subparagraph (c), the amount of the gift or contribution be reduced by the amount of any associated indebtedness in respect of which recourse is limited, and the value of any repayment of the limited recourse debt be treated as a gift or contribution in the year the repayment is made.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 18, 2003: Tax Shelter Definition

Generally, a tax shelter is any property in respect of which it is represented that a potential purchaser will be able to claim, within four years, deductions from income or taxable income which equal or exceed the net cost of the property to the purchaser (that is, net of certain prescribed benefits such as limited-recourse debt).

Promoters of tax shelter properties are not permitted to sell a tax shelter without first obtaining an identification number from the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA). This identification number does not constitute confirmation by the CCRA of entitlement to any tax benefits that may have been described to potential purchasers; rather, the CCRA uses the number for administrative purposes such as identifying tax shelters for audit.

If an identification number is not obtained in advance, no person may claim any deduction in respect of the tax shelter until the number is obtained.

While the existing definition of "tax shelter" in the Income Tax Act applies to arrangements promoted as providing deductions in computing income or taxable income, it may not currently apply to those that are promoted as providing only the deduction of tax credits. The budget proposes to eliminate this technical distinction so that promoters will be required to register a property as a tax shelter if representations are made that a potential purchaser will be able to claim, within four years, any combination of deductions in computing income or taxable income and federal tax credits which in total equal or exceed the purchaser's net cost of the property. The definition of tax shelter will also be amended to clarify its application to property acquired under an arrangement in respect of which it is represented that a donation or contribution of the property would generate tax credits or deductions (such as charitable donations tax credits or deductions) equal to or exceeding the net cost to the donor of the property.

In order to avoid a double counting of tax credits in the formula used to determine if a property or an arrangement is a tax shelter, it is proposed that the definition of "prescribed benefits" in paragraph 231(6)(b) of the Income Tax Regulations be amended to exclude any federal tax credit already taken into account in determining whether tax credits and deductions exceed net cost. Provincial tax credits would continue to be considered prescribed benefits.

Further, the budget proposes to treat as a tax shelter any arrangement that involves a transfer of property in respect of which it is represented that a donation or contribution of the property would generate tax credits or deductions, if it may reasonably be considered that a person will incur limited-recourse debt in connection with the arrangement. If the transfer otherwise qualifies for a tax credit or deduction, the amount of the donation or contribution will be reduced for the purposes of calculating the amount of the credit or deduction to the extent of the associated limited-recourse debt. A repayment of the limited-recourse debt will be treated as a donation or contribution in the year it is repaid.

These amendments will generally apply in respect of property acquired, and gifts, contributions and representations made, after February 18, 2003.

(c.2) a contract for an annuity issued by a licensed annuities provider where

(i) annual or more frequent periodic payments are or may be made under the contract to the holder of the contract,

(B) the periodic payments are payable for a term equal to

(I) 90 years minus the age described in subclause (A)(I), or

(II) 90 years minus the age described in subclause (A)(II), and

(b) for the purposes of paragraph (a),

(i) "income" includes dividends described in section 83, and

(ii) paragraphs 38(a) and (b) shall be read without reference to the fractions set out in those paragraphs.

Proposed Amendment — 146(10.1)(b)(ii)

(a) paragraphs (12)(a) and (b) do not apply by reason only of the extension of that advantage; and

(b) the issuer is liable to a penalty equal to the greater of $100 and the amount or value of that advantage.

(a) the plan is deemed to have been amended immediately after the particular year; and

History: Subsecs. 146(13.2) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 41(4), applicable after 1996, except that

(a) it does not apply to a retirement savings plan where the annuitant under the plan attained 70 years of age before 1997;

(b) in applying the subsec. to a retirement savings plan where the annuitant under the plan attained 69 years of age in 1996, the references in that provisions to "69 years of age" shall be read as "70 years of age";

(c) it does not apply to a retirement savings plan where an annuity contract was issued before March 6, 1996 under, pursuant to or as the plan to provide the retirement income under the plan and, under the terms and conditions of the contract as they read immediately before that day,

(i) the day on which annuity payments are to begin under the plan is fixed and determined and is after the year in which the annuitant attains

(A) 69 years of age, where the annuitant had not attained that age before 1997, or

(B) 70 years of age, where the annuitant attained 69 years of age in 1996, and

(ii) the amount and timing of each annuity payment are fixed and determined; and

(d) it does not apply to a retirement savings plan that is part of a life insurance policy that was issued before March 6, 1996 and that has a life insurance component that is not a retirement savings plan where, under the terms and conditions of the policy as they read immediately before that day,

(i) the amount of each premium, if any, subsequently payable in respect of the life insurance component of the policy, and a date by which each such premium is to be paid, are fixed and determined,

(ii) the amount payable under the policy because of the death of the annuitant (determined without reference to any amount payable as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a policy dividend or related interest) is fixed and determined, and

(iii) insurance on the life of the annuitant is provided under the policy for a period of time after the year in which the annuitant attains

(A) 69 years of age, where the annuitant had not attained that age before 1997, or

(B) 70 years of age, where the annuitant attained 69 years of age in 1996.

Where, because of (d) above, the subsec. does not apply to a retirement savings plan that is part of a life insurance policy, any part of a premium paid under the policy after March 5, 1996 that was not fixed and determined under the terms and conditions of the policy as they read at the end of that day is deemed, for the purposes of subsecs. 146(5), (5.1) and (8.2), not to have been paid under the policy.

(13.3) Notice — Where a retirement savings plan accepted for registration before 1997 does not prevent maturity after the particular year in which the annuitant under the plan attains 69 years of age, the issuer of the plan shall, before July of the particular year, notify the annuitant in writing that, pursuant to subsections (12) and (13.2), the plan will cease to be a registered retirement savings plan if it does not mature by the end of the particular year, except that no such notification is required where, before that month,

(a) the plan has matured; or

(b) arrangements have been made for the plan to mature, or for the property under the plan to be transferred or otherwise paid out of the plan, by the end of the particular year.

(a) to a registered pension plan for the benefit of the transferor or to a registered retirement savings plan or registered retirement income fund under which the transferor is the annuitant, or

(b) to a registered retirement savings plan or registered retirement income fund under which the spouse or common-law partner or former spouse or common-law partner of the transferor is the annuitant, where the transferor and the transferor's spouse or common-law partner or former spouse or common-law partner are living separate and apart and the payment or transfer is made under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written separation agreement, relating to a division of property between the transferor and the transferor's spouse or common-law partner or former spouse or common-law partner in settlement of rights arising out of, or on the breakdown of, their marriage or common-law partnership, and, where there has been such a payment or transfer of such property on behalf of the transferor before the maturity of the plan,

(c) the amount of the payment or transfer shall not, solely because of the payment or transfer, be included in computing the income of the transferor or the transferor's spouse or common-law partner or former spouse or common-law partner,

(d) no deduction may be made under subsection (5), (5.1) or (8.2) or section 8 or 60 in respect of the payment or transfer in computing the income of any taxpayer, and

(e) where the payment or transfer was made to a registered retirement savings plan, for the purposes of subsection (8.2), the amount of the payment or transfer shall be deemed not to be a premium paid to that plan by the taxpayer.

Possible Future Amendment — Tax pre-paid savings plans

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 18, 2003: Tax Pre-Paid Savings Plans

This budget contains proposals to increase registered pension plan and registered retirement savings plan limits to support saving by Canadians. It is important that the tax system continue to provide and improve upon mechanisms to support saving. The Government has received numerous representations from individuals, researchers and businesses that Canada's tax system should be more conducive to saving. In particular, some of these have proposed the creation of tax pre-paid savings plans (TPSPs).

TPSPs are savings vehicles that, like RRSPs, increase the after-tax return to saving compared to saving in unregistered plans. TPSPs, however, are structured differently than RRSPs. In a TPSP, no deduction is provided on contributions (in this sense, the income tax on contributions is "pre-paid") but the investment income in the plan and withdrawals are not subject to income tax. A number of other countries provide for availability to taxpayers of a combination of RRSP-type and TPSP-type vehicles that improve the tax treatment of savings.

There are a number of important issues that would have to be considered in examining any proposal to introduce TPSPs, for example: their effect on savings behaviour, impact on government revenues, and whether such plans could be effectively administered.

The Government intends to review and consult with respect to these issues in order to assess whether TPSPs could be a useful and appropriate mechanism to provide additional savings opportunities for Canadians.

(8) Filing of prescribed form — A prescribed form referred to in this section that is submitted to an issuer shall be filed with the Minister by the issuer not later than 15 days after the quarter in which it was submitted to the issuer.

Proposed Repeal — 146.01(8)

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 82(2), will repeal subsec. 146.01(8), applicable in respect of 2002 et seq.

Technical Notes: In order for an RRSP withdrawal to qualify as an HBP withdrawal, the taxpayer must make a written request in prescribed form to the RRSP issuer. The prescribed form for this purpose is the T1036. Under subsection 146.01(8), an RRSP issuer to whom a T1036 is submitted must file the form with the Minister of National Revenue no later than 15 days after the quarter in which it was so submitted.

Subsection 146.01(8) is repealed. Rather than reporting HBP withdrawals on a quarterly basis by filing the relevant T1036, RRSP issuers will instead be required to report such withdrawals on an annual basis using the T4RSP. It is proposed that Part II of the Regulations be amended [now done in Reg. 214(1) — ed.] to reflect this new reporting requirement.

Forms: T1 Sched. 7: RRSP unused contributions, transfers, and HBP or LLP activities; T1036: Home buyers' plan — request to withdraw funds from an RRSP.

Proposed Amendment — RESPs as trusts

Department of Finance news release, July 20, 1999: Technical Change Announced for Registered Education Savings Plans

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced that he will propose changes to the Income Tax Act to accommodate a common industry practice concerning registered education savings plans (RESPs).

Under the current legislative framework, an RESP must be structured as a contractual arrangement. However, over the years many RESPs have been structured as trust arrangements.

The proposed changes will allow Canadian trust companies to issue RESPs structured as trust arrangements. This will accommodate a long-standing industry practice and recognize that a trust arrangement is an appropriate vehicle in which to allow Canadians to save for their children's education.

The Minister indicated that draft legislation to implement this proposal will be released at the earliest opportunity.

(A) the individual is resident in Canada when the designation is made, or

(B) the designation is made in conjunction with a transfer of property into the plan from another registered education savings plan under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer, and

(ii) in the case of a contribution, either

(A) the individual's Social Insurance Number is provided to the promoter before the contribution is made and the individual is resident in Canada when the contribution is made, or

(B) the contribution is made by way of transfer from another registered education savings plan under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 83(1), will add para. 146.1(2)(g.3), applicable after March 20, 2003 [to be changed to "after 2003" per news release below — ed.].

Technical Notes: Subsection 146.1(2) sets out the conditions that must be satisfied in order for an education savings plan to be accepted for registration.

New paragraph 146.1(2)(g.3) is introduced to preclude non-residents and individuals who have not yet been assigned a Social Insurance Number (SIN) from becoming a beneficiary under a registered education savings plan (RESP) or from benefiting from RESP contributions.

Specifically, paragraph 146.1(2)(g.3) requires that an education savings plan not permit an individual to be designated as a beneficiary under the plan and not allow a contribution for a beneficiary under the plan, unless the individual's SIN has been provided to the promoter of the plan and the individual is resident in Canada.

If an individual is designated as a beneficiary under an RESP in conjunction with the transfer of property into the plan from another RESP under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer, the requirement that the individual be resident in Canada in order to be designated as a beneficiary does not apply. However, subject to the exceptions in new subsection 146.1(2.3), the individual's SIN has to be provided to the promoter in order for the individual to be designated as a beneficiary under the transferee RESP. This special rule is intended primarily to accommodate transfers from an RESP to a replacement RESP after the beneficiary has ceased to be resident of Canada. (It should be noted that the transfer itself, as a contribution to an RESP, is not subject to the SIN and residency conditions that apply to ordinary contributions.)

Letter from Department of Finance, May 15, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am responding to your letter of January 17, 2003 to Mr. Brett Baker, regarding the proposed Income Tax Act (ITA) amendments contained in the legislative proposals that were released on December 20, 2002. Your letter raises concerns about the amendment requiring registered education savings plan (RESP) promoters to obtain a beneficiary's Social Insurance Number (SIN) before accepting any contributions into an RESP. I want to express my appreciation for the recent opportunity I had to meet with you and several of your colleagues to further elaborate on this matter.

The federal government is committed to helping Canadian families save for their children's post-secondary education, and recognizes the important role that RESPs play in helping them achieve their financial goal. As you know, the government has taken significant steps in recent years to enhance the attractiveness of RESPs as a savings instrument: the lifetime contribution limit was increased to $42,000 per beneficiary; the annual contribution limit was raised to $4,000 to give families flexibility to make "catch-up" contributions; investment income can be paid out to the contributor in the event the beneficiary does not pursue post-secondary education; and the Canada Education Savings Grant (CESG) program was introduced in the 1998 Budget as part of the Canadian Opportunities Strategy.

The SIN is already required for the effective administration of both the RESP and CESG programs, and must currently be provided in order to register an RESP. The proposed amendment to the ITA is intended to help ensure that RESP beneficiaries fully benefit from RESP tax benefits and the CESG supplement, and will minimize the potential for adverse consequences that can currently arise when the SIN is not provided on time.

In the event that parents face significant delays in obtaining a SIN for their child, they can generally make "catch-up" contributions to the RESP and thus obtain the full CESG.

We appreciate comments and suggestions that we have received on the proposed amendment from members of your organization and others in the RESP industry. While imposing a requirement for obtaining a SIN prior to setting up an RESP is appropriate, for the reasons set out above, we understand that implementing this change too quickly might be disruptive and have some adverse impacts on the sale of RESPs. In order to provide for a smoother transition, I will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the coming-into-force date of the proposed amendment be deferred from March 21, 2003 until January 1, 2004.

I trust this addresses your concerns and thank you for bringing this matter to the government's attention.

Yours sincerely,

Stephen R. Richardson
Senior Assistant Deputy Minister

CCRA Registered Plans release, April 28, 2003: Technical Income Tax Amendments for Registered Education Savings Plans

On December 20, 2002, the Minister of Finance released a package of draft technical amendments to the Income Tax Act (ITA). The technical bill indicated that these amendments were to be applicable after the 90th day after the announcement date (i.e., March 21, 2003). In order to provide for a smoother transition, the Department of Finance intends to propose an amendment to the coming into force date, which would change it from March 21, 2003 to January 1, 2004.

Summary of Changes

Paragraph 146.1(2)(g.3) and subsection 146.1(2.3) have been introduced, both of which apply December 31, 2003. Subparagraph 146.1(2)(g.3)(i) of the Act permits an individual to be designated as a beneficiary under the plan only if the individual's SIN is provided to the promoter before the designation is made, and the individual is resident in Canada when the designation is made. The residency requirement is not applicable when the designation is made in conjunction with a transfer of property from another RESP under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer.

Subparagraph 146.1(2)(g.3)(ii) of the Act permits a contribution to the plan in respect of an individual who is a beneficiary only if the individual's SIN is provided to the promoter before the contribution is made and the individual is resident in Canada, or where the contribution is made by way of a transfer from another RESP under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer.

As an exception to the requirement to provide the individual's SIN above, subsection 146.1(2.3) does not require an individual's SIN to be provided in respect of a contribution to the plan, if the plan was entered into before 1999. Such contributions continue to be ineligible for the CESG, and the SIN exception is relevant only for existing beneficiaries under such plans.

Under the second new exception, an educational savings plan may permit a non-resident individual who does not have a SIN to be designated as a beneficiary under the plan provided that such designation is made in conjunction with a transfer of property from another RESP under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer.

Promoter requirements

As well as amending your RESP specimen plan(s) to comply with the proposed changes for new contracts, you may also need to amend existing contracts so that they may maintain their registered status and eligibility for the Canada Education Savings Grant (CESG).

We will require that the amendments be submitted to this office a year from the date the amendment to the Income Tax Act receives Royal Assent. Please note that the plans must be administered as if they were amended as of January 1, 2004.

(i) the plan provides that it must be terminated on or before the last day of the 25th year following the year in which the plan is entered into;

(i.1) if the plan allows accumulated income payments in accordance with paragraph (d.1), the plan provides that it must be terminated before March of the year following the year in which the first such payment is made out of the plan;

(i.2) the plan does not allow for the receipt of property by way of direct transfer from another registered education savings plan after the other plan has made any accumulated income payment;

(j) if the plan allows more than one beneficiary under the plan at any one time, the plan provides

(i) that each of the beneficiaries under the plan is required to be connected to each living subscriber under the plan, or to have been connected to a deceased original subscriber under the plan, by blood relationship or adoption,

(ii) that a contribution into the plan in respect of a beneficiary is permitted to be made only if

(A) the beneficiary had not attained 21 years of age before the time of the contribution, or

(B) the contribution is made by way of transfer from another registered education savings plan that allows more than one beneficiary at any one time, and

(iii) that an individual is permitted to become a beneficiary under the plan at any particular time only if

(A) the individual had not attained 21 years of age before the particular time, or

(B) the individual was, immediately before the particular time, a beneficiary under another registered education savings plan that allows more than one beneficiary at any one time;

(k) the plan does not allow the total of all contributions made into the plan in respect of a beneficiary for a year (other than contributions made by way of transfer from registered education savings plans) to exceed the RESP annual limit for the year;

(l) the plan provides that the promoter shall, within 90 days after an individual becomes a beneficiary under the plan, notify the individual (or, where the individual is under 19 years of age at that time and ordinarily resides with a parent of the individual, that parent) in writing of the existence of the plan and the name and address of the subscriber in respect of the plan;

(2.2) Waiver of conditions for accumulated income payments — The Minister may, on written application of the promoter of a registered education savings plan, waive the application of the conditions in subparagraphs (2)(d.1)(v) and (vi) in respect of the plan where a beneficiary under the plan suffers from a severe and prolonged mental impairment that prevents, or can reasonably be expected to prevent, the beneficiary from enrolling in a qualifying educational program at a post-secondary educational institution.

History: Subsec. 146.1(2.2) added by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 62(9) applicable after 1997.

Proposed Addition — 146.1(2.3)

(2.3) Social Insurance Number not required — Notwithstanding paragraph (2)(g.3), an education savings plan may provide that an individual's Social Insurance Number need not be provided in respect of

(a) a contribution to the plan, if the plan was entered into before 1999; and

(b) a designation of a non-resident individual as a beneficiary under the plan, if the individual was not assigned a Social Insurance Number before the designation is made.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 83(2), will add subsec. 146.1(2.3), applicable after March 20, 2003 [to be changed to "after 2003" per news release reproduced under 146.1(2)(g.3) — ed.].

Technical Notes: New subsection 146.1(2.3) provides two additional exceptions to the SIN condition that are primarily of relevance to RESPs that were entered before 1999 and RESPs that replace such plans. These exceptions recognize that the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency only began requiring the beneficiary's SIN to be provided on the application for registration for plans entered into after 1998.

The first new exception allows an education savings plan that was entered into before 1999 to not require that an individual's SIN be provided in respect of a contribution to the plan. Such contributions, however, continue to be ineligible for the Canada Education Savings Grant. It should be noted that this exception is only relevant for contributions made for existing beneficiaries under such plans. An individual without a SIN is prevented from being designated as a new beneficiary under such a plan.

Under the second new exception, an education savings plan may permit a non-resident individual who does not have a SIN to be designated as a beneficiary under the plan provided that the designation is being made in conjunction with a transfer of property into the plan from another RESP under which the individual was a beneficiary immediately before the transfer. This exception is intended, in particular, to accommodate the transfer of property from an RESP that was entered into before 1999, under which the beneficiary had always been non-resident or had ceased to be resident of Canada before having been assigned a SIN, to a replacement RESP (and successive transfers).

CCRA Registered Plans release, April 28, 2003: See under 146.1(2)(g.3).

(a) the year in which all of the conditions set out in subsection (2) (except in paragraph (2)(b)) were complied with, or

Registered Retirement Income Funds

146.3 (1) Definitions — In this section,

"annuitant" under a retirement income fund at any time means

(a) the first individual to whom the carrier has undertaken to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund, where the first individual is alive at that time,

(b) after the death of the first individual, a spouse or common-law partner (in this definition referred to as the "survivor") of the first individual to whom the carrier has undertaken to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund after the death of the first individual, where the survivor is alive at that time and the undertaking was made pursuant to an election described in that definition of the first individual with the consent of the legal representative of the first individual, and

Proposed Amendment — 146.3(1)"annuitant"(b)

(b) after the death of the first individual, a spouse or common-law partner (in this definition referred to as the "survivor") of the first individual to whom the carrier has undertaken to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund after the death of the first individual, if the survivor is alive at that time and the undertaking was made

(i) pursuant to an election that is described in that definition and that was made by the first individual, or

(ii) with the consent of the legal representative of the first individual, and

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 84(1), will amend para. (b) of the definition "annuitant" in subsec. 146.3(1) to read as above, applicable to 2001 et seq. except that, if a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected under s. 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act [S.C. 2000, c. 12; see the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner"], in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation years, it applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

Technical Notes: Subsection 146.3(1) contains the definition "annuitant" for purposes of the rules relating to RRIFs. Paragraph (b) of the definition allows the spouse or common-law partner of a deceased annuitant to become the successor annuitant under the RRIF, if the deceased annuitant so elected or the legal representative of the deceased annuitant consents. When this paragraph was amended by S.C. 2000, c. 12 (the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act, formerly Bill C-23), the word "or" in the English version was inadvertently removed. The definition is amended to correct this error, and to improve the readability of this paragraph, with the same application as the initial amendment in Bill C-23.

(c) after the death of the survivor, another spouse or common-law partner of the survivor to whom the carrier has undertaken, with the consent of the legal representative of the survivor, to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund after the death of the survivor, where that other spouse or common-law partner is alive at that time;

History: Paras. (b) and (c) of the definition "annuitant" in subsec. 146.3(1) by 2000, c. 12, s. 136, applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History note to 248(1)"common-law partner". The paras. formerly read:

(b) after the death of the first individual, a spouse (in this paragraph[38] referred to as the "surviving spouse") of the first individual to whom the carrier has undertaken to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund after the death of the first individual, where the surviving spouse is alive at that time and the undertaking was made pursuant to an election described in that definition of the first individual or with the consent of the legal representative of the first individual, and

(c) after the death of the surviving spouse, another spouse of the surviving spouse to whom the carrier has undertaken, with the consent of the legal representative of the surviving spouse, to make payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" out of or under the fund after the death of the surviving spouse, where that other spouse is alive at that time;

The definition "annuitant" in subsec. 146.3(1) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 84(1), applicable to deaths occurring after 1990. The definition formerly read:

"annuitant" under a retirement income fund at any particular time means the individual to whom the carrier has undertaken to make the payments described in the definition "retirement income fund" in this subsection out of or under the fund;

Forms: RC4178: Death of a RRIF annuitant [guide].

(a) a person licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an annuities business,

(b) a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

"designated benefit" of an individual in respect of a registered retirement income fund means the total of

(a) such amounts paid out of or under the fund after the death of the last annuitant thereunder to the legal representative of that annuitant

(i) as would, had they been paid under the fund to the individual, have been refunds of premiums (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by subsection 146(1)) if the fund were a registered retirement savings plan that had not matured before the death, and

(ii) as are designated jointly by the legal representative and the individual in prescribed form filed with the Minister, and

(b) amounts paid out of or under the fund after the death of the last annuitant thereunder to the individual that would be refunds of premiums had the fund been a registered retirement savings plan that had not matured before the death;

Related Provisions: 146.3(6.1) — Designated benefit deemed received; 146.3(6.11) — Transfer of designated benefit.

History: The definition "designated benefit" added to subsec. 146.3(1) by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 71(2), applicable to deaths occurring after 1992.

Forms: T1090: Death of a RRIF annuitant — designated benefit.

"minimum amount" under a retirement income fund for a year is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total fair market value of all properties held in connection with the fund at the beginning of the year (other than annuity contracts held by a trust governed by the fund that, at the beginning of the year, are not described in paragraph (b.1) of the definition "qualified investment");

B is

(a) where the first annuitant under the fund elected in respect of the fund under paragraph (b) of the definition "minimum amount" in this subsection, as it read before 1992, or under subparagraph 146.3(1)(f)(i) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, to use the age of another individual, the prescribed factor for the year in respect of the other individual,

(b) where paragraph (a) does not apply and the first annuitant under the fund so elects before any payment has been made under the fund by the carrier, the prescribed factor for the year in respect of an individual who was the spouse or common-law partner of the first annuitant at the time of the election, and

(c) in any other case, the prescribed factor for the year in respect of the first annuitant under the fund, and

C is, where the fund governs a trust, the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) a periodic payment under an annuity contract held by the trust at the beginning of the year (other than an annuity contract described at the beginning of the year in paragraph (b.1) of the definition

[38] Sic. This should read "in this definition".

"qualified investment") that is paid to the trust in the year, or

(b) if the periodic payment under such an annuity contract is not made to the trust because the trust disposed of the right to that payment in the year, a reasonable estimate of that payment on the assumption that the annuity contract had been held throughout the year and no rights under the contract were disposed of in the year;

Related Provisions: 146.3(1)"retirement income fund" — Requirement to withdraw minimum amount annually; 146.3(2)(e.1), (e.2) — Requirement for carrier to retain enough property to pay out minimum amount; 146.3(5.1) — Amount included in income; Reg. 100(1)"remuneration"(j.1), 103(6)(d.1) — Withholding tax on payments; Income Tax Conventions Interpretation Act 5"periodic pension payment"(c) — Withdrawal of more than twice the minimum amount per year is not "periodic".

History: The definition "minimum amount" in subsec. 146.3(1) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

The definition "minimum amount" in subsec. 146.3(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 171(1), applicable

(a) to 1998 et seq. with respect to

(i) retirement income funds entered into after February 1986, and

(ii) retirement income funds entered into before March 1986 and revised or amended after February 1986 and before 1998;

(b) to the year in which a retirement income fund is first revised or amended after 1997 and to subsequent years, if the fund was entered into before March 1986 and was not revised or amended after February 1986 and before 1998; and

(c) with respect to a retirement income fund that governs a trust that, after July 1997, holds a contract for an annuity, to all years that begin after the first day

(i) that is after July 1997, and

(ii) on which the trust holds such a contract.

The definition formerly read:

"minimum amount" under a retirement income fund for the year in which the fund is entered into is nil and for each subsequent year is the product obtained when the fair market value of the property held in connection with the fund at the beginning of that subsequent year is multiplied by

(a) where the first annuitant under the fund elected in respect of the fund under paragraph (b), as it read before 1992, or under subparagraph 146.3(1)(f)(i) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read before 1986, to use the age of another individual, the prescribed amount for that subsequent year in respect of the other individual,

(b) where paragraph (a) does not apply and the first annuitant under the fund so elects before any payment has been made under the fund by the carrier, the prescribed amount for that subsequent year in respect of an individual who was the spouse of the first annuitant at the time of the election, or

(c) in any other case, the prescribed amount for that subsequent year in respect of the first annuitant under the fund;

The definition "minimum amount" in subsec. 146.3(1) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 84(2), applicable

(a) to 1992 et seq. with respect to retirement income funds

(i) entered into after February 1986, and

(ii) entered into before March 1986 and revised or amended after February 1986 and before 1992; and

(b) to the taxation year in which a retirement income fund is first revised or amended after February 1986 and to subsequent taxation years, where the fund was entered into before March 1986 and was not revised or amended after February 1986 and before 1992.

However, the amended definition does not apply, for the purposes of subsec. 146.3(5.1), prescribed rules made for the purpose of subsection 153(1) of the Act, and section 5 of the Income Tax Conventions Interpretation Act, to payments made before 1993. The definition formerly read:

(a) for the year in which the fund was entered into is nil and

(b) for each subsequent year, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value of the property held in connection with the fund at the beginning of the year, and

B is

(i) the number that is, or would be, the age in whole years of the annuitant at the beginning of the year, or

(ii) where the annuitant so elects before any payment has been made by the carrier of the fund, the number that is or would be the age in whole years of the annuitant's spouse at the beginning of the year;

"qualified investment" for a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund means

(a) an investment that would be described in any of paragraphs (a), (b), (d) and (f) to (h) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204 if the references in that definition to "a trust governed by a deferred profit sharing plan or revoked plan" were read as references to "a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund",

(i) issued by a corporation the shares of which are listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada, or

(ii) issued by an authorized foreign bank and payable at a branch in Canada of the bank,

(i) the trust is the only person who, disregarding any subsequent transfer of the contract by the trust, is or may become entitled to any annuity payments under the contract, and

(ii) the holder of the contract has a right to surrender the contract at any time for an amount that would, if reasonable sales and administration charges were ignored, approximate the value of funds that could otherwise be applied to fund future periodic payments under the contract,

(b.2) a contract for an annuity issued by a licensed annuities provider where

(i) annual or more frequent periodic payments are or may be made under the contract to the holder of the contract,

(ii) the trust is the only person who, disregarding any subsequent transfer of the contract by the trust, is or may become entitled to any annuity payments under the contract,

(iii) neither the time nor the amount of any payment under the contract may vary because of the length of any life, other than

(A) if the annuitant under the fund (in this paragraph referred to as the "RRIF annuitant") has made the election referred to in the definition "retirement income fund" in respect of the fund and a spouse or common-law partner, the life of the RRIF annuitant or the life of the spouse or common-law partner, and

(v) either

(A) the periodic payments are payable for the life of the RRIF annuitant or the joint lives of the RRIF annuitant and the RRIF annuitant's spouse or common-law partner and either there is no guaranteed period under the contract or there is a guaranteed period that begins at the start date and does not exceed a term equal to 90 years minus the lesser of

(I) the age in whole years at the start date of the RRIF annuitant (determined on the assumption that the RRIF annuitant is alive at the start date), and

(II) the age in whole years at the start date of a spouse or common-law partner of the RRIF annuitant (determined on the assumption that a spouse or common-law partner of the RRIF annuitant at the time the contract was acquired is a spouse or common-law partner of the RRIF annuitant at the start date), or

(B) the periodic payments are payable for a term equal to

(I) 90 years minus the age described in subclause (A)(I), or

(II) 90 years minus the age described in subclause (A)(II), and

(vi) the periodic payments

(A) are equal, or

(B) are not equal solely because of one or more adjustments that would, if the contract were an annuity under a retirement savings plan, be in accordance with subparagraphs 146(3)(b)(iii) to (v) or that arise because of a uniform reduction in the entitlement to the periodic payments as a consequence of a partial surrender of rights to the periodic payments, and

(c) such other investments as may be prescribed by regulations of the Governor in Council made on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 84(2), will amend the opening words of para. 146.3(2)(c) to read as above, applicable after 2001.

Technical Notes: Subsection 146.3(2) outlines the conditions that must be satisfied in order for a retirement income fund to be registered as a RRIF.

Paragraph 146.3(2)(c) of the English version refers to a carrier who "is a person referred to as a depository in section 146". This paragraph is amended to replace the word "depository" with the word "depositary", which is the term used in section 146. This amendment applies after 2001.

(i) the carrier has no right of offset as regards the property held in connection with the fund in respect of any debt or obligation owing to the carrier, and

(ii) the property held in connection with the fund cannot be pledged, assigned or in any way alienated as security for a loan or for any purpose other than that of the making by the carrier to the annuitant those payments described in paragraph (a);

(d) the fund provides that, except where the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner becomes the annuitant under the fund, the carrier shall, as a consequence of the death of the annuitant, distribute the property held in connection with the fund at the time of the annuitant's death or an amount equal to the value of such property at that time;

(e) the fund provides that, at the direction of the annuitant, the carrier shall transfer all or part of the property held in connection with the fund, or an amount equal to its value at the time of the direction (other than property required to be retained in accordance with the provision described in paragraph (e.1) or (e.2)), together with all information necessary for the continuance of the fund, to a person who has agreed to be a carrier of another registered retirement income fund of the annuitant;

(e.1) where the fund does not govern a trust or the fund governs a trust created before 1998 that does not hold an annuity contract as a qualified investment for the trust, the fund provides that if an annuitant, at any time, directs that the carrier transfer all or part of the property held in connection with the fund, or an amount equal to its value at that time, to a person who has agreed to be a carrier of another registered retirement income fund of the annuitant or to a registered pension plan in accordance with subsection (14.1), the transferor shall retain an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of such portion of the property as would, if the fair market value thereof does not decline after the transfer, be sufficient to ensure that the minimum amount under the fund for the year in which the transfer is made may be paid to the annuitant in the year, and

(ii) the fair market value of all the property;

(e.2) where paragraph (e.1) does not apply, the fund provides that if an annuitant, at any time, directs that the carrier transfer all or part of the property held in connection with the fund, or an amount equal to its value at that time, to a person who has agreed to be a carrier of another registered retirement income fund of the annuitant or to a registered pension plan in accordance with subsection (14.1), the transferor shall retain property in the fund sufficient to ensure that the total of

(i) all amounts each of which is the fair market value, immediately after the transfer, of a property held in connection with the fund that is

(A) property other than an annuity contract, or

(B) an annuity contract described, immediately after the transfer, in paragraph (b.1) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection (1), and

(ii) all amounts each of which is a reasonable estimate, as of the time of the transfer, of the amount of an annual or more frequent periodic payment under an annuity contract (other than an annuity contract described in clause (i)(B)) that the trust may receive after the transfer and in the year of the transfer is not less than the amount, if any, by which the minimum amount under the fund for that year exceeds the total of all amounts received out of or under the fund before the transfer that are included in computing the income of the annuitant under the fund for that year;

(f) the fund provides that the carrier shall not accept property as consideration thereunder other than property transferred from

(i) a registered retirement savings plan under which the individual is the annuitant,

(ii) another registered retirement income fund under which the individual is the annuitant,

(iii) the individual to the extent only that the amount of the consideration was an amount described in subparagraph 60(l)(v),

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 84(3), will add subpara. 146.3(2)(f)(viii), applicable after March 20, 2003.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 146.3(2)(f) prohibits a RRIF from receiving property, other than property transferred from sources listed in that paragraph. The paragraph is amended so that a RRIF may receive property transferred directly from a deferred profit sharing plan (DPSP) in accordance with subsection 147(19). This amendment is consequential on an amendment to subsection 147(19) that permits direct transfers from DPSPs to RRIFs. For more details, see the commentary to that subsection. This amendment applies after the 90th day after December 20, 2002.

(c) all amounts each of which is an amount that would, if the fund were a registered retirement savings plan, be a tax-paid amount in respect of the fund received by the legal representative of the last annuitant under the fund, to the extent that the legal representative would have been entitled to designate that tax-paid amount under paragraph (a) of the definition "designated benefit" in subsection (1) if tax-paid amounts were not excluded in determining refunds of premiums (as defined in subsection 146(1));

the fair market value of

(c) the investment at the time it was acquired by the trust, or

(d) the property used as security at the time it commenced to be so used

Proposed Amendment — 146.3(9) opening words

(9) Tax payable on income from non-qualified investment — If a trust that is governed by a registered retirement income fund holds, at any time in a taxation year, a property that is not a qualified investment,

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 84(4), will amend the opening words of subsec. 146.3(9) to read as above, applicable to 2003 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 146.3(9) provides that, if a trust governed by a RRIF acquires a non-qualified investment, any income earned by the trust from the investment is taxable under Part I.

Subsection 146.3(9) is amended to clarify that income from property that was a qualified investment at the time it was acquired but later became non-qualified is also taxable in respect of the non-qualified period. This amendment, which applies to the 2003 and subsequent taxation years, is consistent with the tax treatment of income earned by RRSP trusts from non-qualified investments under subsection 146(10.1).

(a) tax is payable under this Part by the trust on the amount that its taxable income for the year would be if it had no incomes or losses from sources other than the property that is not a qualified investment or no capital gains or capital losses other than from the disposition of that property, as the case may be; and

(b) for the purposes of paragraph (a),

(i) "income" includes dividends described in section 83, and

(ii) paragraphs 38(a) and (b) shall be read without reference to the fractions set out therein.

Proposed Amendment — 146.3(9)(b)(ii)

(ii) paragraphs 38(a) and (b) are to read with the fraction set out in each of those paragraphs replaced by the word "all".

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 84(5), will amend subpara. 146.3(9)(b)(ii) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subparagraph 146.3(9)(b)(ii) is reworded for clarity, applicable on Royal Assent.

(10) Recovery of property used as security — Where at any time in a taxation year a loan for which a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund has used or permitted to be used trust property as security ceases to be extant, and the fair market value of the property so used was included by virtue of subsection (7) in computing the income of a taxpayer who was the annuitant under the fund, there may be deducted in computing the income for a taxation year of the taxpayer who is at that time the annuitant, an amount equal to the amount, if any, remaining when

(a) the net loss (exclusive of payments by the trust as or on account of interest) sustained by the trust in consequence of its using or permitting to be used the property as security for the loan and not as a result of a change in the fair market value of the property is deducted from

(b) the amount so included in computing the income of a taxpayer in consequence of the trust's using or permitting to be used the property as security for the loan.

(a) the amended fund shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be a registered retirement income fund; and

(b) the taxpayer who was the annuitant under the fund before it became an amended fund shall, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes that day, include as income received out of the fund at that time an amount equal to the fair market value of all the property held in connection with the fund immediately before that time.

Regulations: 215(4) (information return).

(13) Idem — Where at any time a benefit or loan is extended or continues to be extended as a consequence of the existence of a registered retirement income fund and that benefit or loan would be prohibited if the fund met the requirement for registration contained in paragraph (2)(g), for the purposes of subsection (11), the fund shall be deemed to have been revised or amended at that time so that it fails to meet the requirement for registration contained in paragraph (2)(g).

(14) Transfer on breakdown of marriage or common-law partnership — An amount is transferred from a registered retirement income fund of an annuitant in accordance with this subsection if the amount

(a) is transferred on behalf of an individual who is a spouse or common-law partner or former spouse or common-law partner of the annuitant and who is entitled to the amount under a decree, an order or a judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, that relates to a division of property between the annuitant and the individual in settlement of rights that arise out of, or on a breakdown of, their marriage or common-law partnership; and

Deferred Profit Sharing Plans

147. (1) Definitions — In this section,

"deferred profit sharing plan" means a profit sharing plan accepted by the Minister for registration for the purposes of this Act, on application therefor in prescribed manner by a trustee under the plan and an employer of employees who are beneficiaries under the plan, as complying with the requirements of this section;

Related Provisions: 128.1(10)"excluded right or interest"(a)(iv) — No deemed disposition of DPSP on emigration.

"forfeited amount", under a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan the registration of which has been revoked pursuant to subsection (14) or (14.1), means an amount to which a beneficiary under the plan has ceased to have any rights, other than the portion thereof, if any, that is payable as a consequence of the death of the beneficiary to a person who is entitled thereto by virtue of the participation of the beneficiary in the plan;

"licensed annuities provider" means a person licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an annuities business;

Related Provisions: 248(1)"licensed annuities provider" — Definition applies to entire Act.

History: The definition "licensed annuities provider" added to subsec. 147(1) by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 43(1), applicable after 1991.

"profit sharing plan" means an arrangement under which payments computed by reference to an employer's profits from the employer's business, or by reference to those profits and the profits, if any, from the business of a corporation with which the employer does not deal at arm's length, are or have been made by the employer to a trustee in trust for the benefit of employees or former employees of that employer.

(1.1) Participating employer — An employer is considered to participate in a profit sharing plan where the employer makes or has made payments under the plan to a trustee in trust for the benefit of employees or former employees of the employer.

History: Subsec. 147(1.1) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 43(2), applicable after 1988.

(2) Acceptance of plan for registration — The Minister shall not accept for registration for the purposes of this Act any profit sharing plan unless, in the Minister's opinion, it complies with the following conditions:

(a) the plan provides that each payment made under the plan to a trustee in trust for the benefit of beneficiaries thereunder is the total of amounts each of which is required to be allocated by the trustee in the year in which it is received by the trustee, to the individual beneficiary in respect of whom the amount was so paid;

(a.1) the plan includes a stipulation that no contribution may be made to the plan other than

(i) a contribution made in accordance with the terms of the plan by an employer for the benefit of the employer's employees who are beneficiaries under the plan, or

(ii) an amount transferred to the plan in accordance with subsection (19);

(b) the plan does not provide for the payment of any amount to an employee or other beneficiary thereunder by way of loan;

(c) the plan provides that no part of the funds of the trust governed by the plan may be invested in notes, bonds, debentures, bankers' acceptances or similar obligations of

(i) an employer by whom payments are made in trust to a trustee under the plan for the benefit of beneficiaries thereunder, or

(ii) a corporation with whom that employer does not deal at arm's length;

(d) the plan provides that no part of the funds of the trust governed by the plan may be invested in shares of a corporation at least 50% of the property of which consists of notes, bonds, debentures, bankers' acceptances or similar obligations of an employer or a corporation described in paragraph (c);

(e) the plan includes a provision stipulating that no right or interest under the plan of an employee who is a beneficiary thereunder is capable, either in whole or in part, of surrender or assignment;

Proposed Amendment — 147(2)(e)

(e) the plan includes a provision stipulating that no right of a person under the plan is capable of any surrender or assignment other than

(i) an assignment under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, that relates to a division of property between an individual and the individual's spouse or common-law partner, or former spouse or common-law partner, in settlement of rights that arise out of, or on a breakdown of, their marriage or common-law partnership,

(ii) an assignment by a deceased individual's legal representative on the distribution of the individual's estate, and

(iii) a surrender of benefits to avoid revocation of the plan's registration;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 85(1), will amend para. 147(2)(e) to read as above, applicable after March 20, 2003.

Technical Notes: Subsection 147(2) sets out the conditions that a profit sharing plan must satisfy in order to be registered as a DPSP. Paragraph 147(2)(e) requires that such a plan include a provision stipulating that no right of an employee who is a beneficiary under the plan is capable of surrender or assignment.

Paragraph 147(2)(e) is amended in two ways. First, it is amended to extend the application of the provision to require that the stipulation apply to all persons who have rights under a DPSP, not just employee beneficiaries. Second, it is amended to provide that the stipulation is not required to prohibit:

- an assignment under a court order or written agreement relating to the division of property on the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership;
- an assignment by a deceased individual's legal representative on the distribution of the individual's estate; and
- a surrender of benefits to avoid revocation of the plan's registration.

These new provisions are similar to the rule in Regulation 8502(f) that applies to registered pension plans (RPPs). The new provisions are, in part, consequential on amendments to subsection 147(19) that accommodate the division of DPSP assets on the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership.

(f) the plan includes a provision stipulating that each of the trustees under the plan shall be resident in Canada;

(g) the plan provides that, if a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee is not a trustee under the plan, there shall be at least 3 trustees under the plan who shall be individuals;

(h) the plan provides that all income received, capital gains made and capital losses sustained by the trust governed by the plan must be allocated to beneficiaries under the plan on or before a day 90 days after the end of the year in which they were received, made or sustained, as the case may be, to the extent that they have not been allocated in years preceding that year;

(i) the plan provides that each amount allocated or reallocated by a trustee under the plan to a beneficiary under the plan vest irrevocably in that beneficiary,

(i) in the case of an amount allocated or reallocated before 1991, at a time that is not later than 5 years after the end of the year in which it was allocated or reallocated, unless the beneficiary becomes, before that time, an individual who is not an employee of any employer who participates in the plan, and

(ii) in the case of any other amount, not later than the later of the time of allocation or reallocation and the day on which the beneficiary completes a period of 24 consecutive months as a beneficiary under the plan or under any other deferred profit sharing plan for which the plan can reasonably be considered to have been substituted;

(i.1) the plan requires that each forfeited amount under the plan and all earnings of the plan reasonably attributable thereto be paid to employers who participate in the plan, or be reallocated to beneficiaries under the plan, on or before the later of December 31, 1991 and December 31 of the year immediately following the calendar year in which the amount is forfeited, or such later time as is permitted in writing by the Minister under subsection (2.2);

(j) the plan provides that a trustee under the plan inform, in writing, all new beneficiaries under the plan of their rights under the plan;

(k) the plan provides that, in respect of each beneficiary under the plan who has been employed by an employer who participates in the plan, all amounts vested under the plan in the beneficiary become payable

(i) to the beneficiary, or

(ii) in the event of the beneficiary's death, to another person designated by the beneficiary or to the beneficiary's estate, not later than the earlier of

(iii) the end of the year in which the beneficiary attains 69 years of age, and

(iv) 90 days after the earliest of

(A) the death of the beneficiary,

(B) the day on which the beneficiary ceases to be employed by an employer who participates in the plan where, at the time of ceasing to be so employed, the beneficiary is not employed by another employer who participates in the plan, and

(C) the termination or winding-up of the plan, except that the plan may provide that, on election by the beneficiary, all or any part of the amounts payable to the beneficiary may be paid

(v) in equal instalments payable not less frequently than annually over a period not exceeding 10 years from the day on which the amount became payable, or

(vi) by a trustee under the plan to a licensed annuities provider to purchase for the beneficiary an annuity where

(A) payment of the annuity is to begin not later than the end of the year in which the beneficiary attains 69 years of age, and

(B) the guaranteed term, if any, of the annuity does not exceed 15 years;

(k.1) the plan requires that no benefit or loan, other than

(i) a benefit the amount of which is required to be included in computing the beneficiary's income,

(ii) an amount referred to in paragraph (10)(b),

(ii.1) an amount paid pursuant to or under the plan by a trustee under the plan to a licensed annuities provider to purchase for a beneficiary under the plan an annuity to which subparagraph (k)(vi) applies,

Proposed Repeal — 147(5.11)

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 85(2), will repeal subsec. 147(5.11), applicable to cessations of employment that occur after 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 147(5.1) sets out the employer contribution limits for DPSPs. In general terms, the maximum employer contributions in respect of an individual for a calendar year cannot exceed the lesser of: (i) 18% of the individual's compensation for the year from the employer; and (ii) ½ of the year's money purchase limit. For this purpose, "compensation" and "money purchase limit" are generally as defined in subsection 147.1(1). Additional cross-plan limits apply if the individual also participates in an RPP sponsored by the employer or in a DPSP or RPP sponsored by a non-arm's length employer.

If the contribution limits are not respected for a calendar year, the Minister of National Revenue may revoke the registration of the DPSP. In addition, the employer is denied a deduction for all contributions made in the year, except as expressly permitted in writing by the Minister.

Subsection 147(5.11) provides a special relieving rule that applies when an employee who is a beneficiary under a DPSP terminates employment with a participating employer in a calendar year. In this circumstance, for the purposes of determining whether the contribution limits have been satisfied, the employee's compensation can be based on the compensation for the immediately preceding year, if it is more than the compensation for the year of termination.

This rule recognizes that it is common practice for an employer to make contributions to a DPSP only after its fiscal year-end, since this is when profits are determined. This can often result in employer contributions being made based (in whole or in part) on employees' earnings in the previous calendar year, but being included in the employees' contribution limits for the current calendar year. This in turn can give rise to over-contributions when an employee terminates employment later in the year before having earned sufficient compensation to support the contribution. However, subsection 147(5.11) generally ensures that such over-contributions do not result in adverse tax effects by allowing the contribution limits to be based on the employee's compensation from the preceding calendar year.

There are, however, two policy concerns with the approach used in subsection 147(5.11). The first concern is that the provision deals only with over-contributions that involve employees who terminate employment. It does not provide relief for similar over-contributions that arise where an employee takes an unpaid leave of absence before having earned sufficient compensation to support any contributions that the employer had already made on his or her behalf. The second concern is that the provision allows DPSP contributions to be made in situations where there is no supporting employment income.

To address these concerns, subsection 147(5.11) is repealed and is proposed to be replaced by a broader relief mechanism in the Regulations. The new mechanism will provide relief in both of the situations described above by allowing over-contributions to be ignored for purposes of the DPSP contribution limits, provided the excess is refunded from the plan. For more details, see the commentary to amended Regulation 8301(2) in Appendix I.

The repeal of subsection 147(5.11) applies to cessations of employment that occur in 2003 and subsequent calendar years and the proposed new refund mechanism in the Regulations is to apply for 2002 and subsequent calendar years. As a result, for excess contributions relating to cessations of employment that occur in 2002, employers will be entitled to relief either by relying on existing 147(5.11) or by using the refund mechanism.

(6) Deferred plan not employees profit sharing plan — For a period during which a plan is a deferred profit sharing plan, the plan shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be an employees profit sharing plan.

tered, in respect of the employees and former employees of the employer, where

(a) the recommendation is based on an actuarial valuation that complies with the following conditions, except the conditions in subparagraphs (iii) and (iv) to the extent that they are inconsistent with any other conditions that apply for the purpose of determining whether the contribution is an eligible contribution:

(i) the effective date of the valuation is not more than 4 years before the day on which the contribution is made,

(ii) actuarial liabilities and current service costs are determined in accordance with an actuarial funding method that produces a reasonable matching of contributions with accruing benefits,

Proposed Amendment — Regulatory exception re fixed-cost-shared plan

Letter from Department of Finance, August 19, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is further to our recent discussion concerning the status of the Department's review of the request by the [xxx] to relax the pension surplus rules in the Income Tax Act for defined benefit pension plans that are governed by a fixed-cost-shared arrangement.

We have completed our review of this matter and wish to confirm the Department's intention to recommend to the Minister of Finance relieving amendments to the Income Tax Regulations, effective for contributions made after 2002. The proposed amendments would permit employer contributions to be made to a fixed-cost-shared plan in accordance with the following table, where such contributions would not otherwise be permitted under subsection 147.2(2) of the Act because the plan's funding ratio exceeds 110%.

Funding ratio	Total employer and employee current service contributions
>110% and ≤115%	75% of current service costs
>115% and ≤120%	50% of current service costs
>120% and ≤125%	25% of current service costs
>125%	nil

The amendments are being recommended in recognition of the fact that, because of the fixed-cost-shared arrangement, both employee and employer contributions to such a plan are linked to the funded status of the plan. As a result, employee contribution rates have the potential to vary significantly. This is in contrast to traditional defined benefit plans under which employee contribution rates remain constant, regardless of the funded status of the plan. By proposing to relax the restrictions on employer contributions to fixed-cost-shared plans in the manner outlined, changes in the funded status of such plans should be less volatile and, thus, employee contribution rates should be more stable.

If the recommendation is acted upon, the proposed amendments will, at the earliest opportunity, be submitted to the Governor in Council for consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(3) Income inclusion on return of funds — Where at any particular time in a taxation year a particular amount is distributed (otherwise than as payment for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to an individual) to a taxpayer from an arrangement that was, at the time it was established, an eligible funeral arrangement and the particular amount is paid from the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement, there shall be added in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from property the lesser of the particular amount and the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement immediately before the particular time (determined without regard to the value of property in a cemetery care trust);

B is the total of all payments made from the arrangement before the particular time for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to the individual (other than cemetery services funded by property in a cemetery care trust); and

C is the total of all relevant contributions made before the particular time in respect of the individual under the particular arrangement (other than contributions in respect of the individual that were in a cemetery care trust).

Proposed Amendment — 148.1(3)C

where

D is the total of all relevant contributions made before the particular time in respect of the individual under the particular arrangement (other than contributions in respect of the individual that were in a cemetery care trust), and

E is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(a) an amount relating to the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement that is deemed by subsection (4) to have been distributed before the particular time from the arrangement

exceeds

(b) the portion of the amount referred to in paragraph (a) that is added, because of this subsection, in computing a taxpayer's income.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 86(2), will amend the description of C in subsec. 148.1(3) to read as above, applicable to amounts that are transferred, credited or added after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 148.1 is amended to provide specific rules relating to transfers from one EFA account to another. In general terms, the changes are as follows: . . .

- The provision that requires EFA distributions to be included in income (subsection 148.1(3)) is amended to ensure that the determination of the amount that can subsequently be distributed from the transferor EFA account on a tax-free basis is reduced by the portion of the transferred amount that was not included in income (i.e., that portion of the transferred amount that represents a return of contributions). . . .

These changes are described in more detail below.

Subsection 148.1(3) provides for an income inclusion by a taxpayer in the event that there is a distribution of funds from an individual's EFA account to the taxpayer (otherwise than as a payment for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to the individual). The amount of the income inclusion is the lesser of the distributed amount and a second amount. In general terms, this second amount is determined by the formula:

where

A is the balance in the EFA account immediately before the distribution,

B is the total of all payments made from the EFA account before the distribution for the provision of funeral or cemetery services, and

C is the total of all "relevant contributions" in respect of the EFA account that were made before the distribution.

For the purpose of the description of C, an amount is defined in subsection 148.1(1) to be a "relevant contribution" in respect of a particular EFA account if

- the amount was contributed to the particular EFA account otherwise than by way of transfer from another EFA account, or
- the amount was contributed to another EFA account (otherwise than by way of transfer) and subsequently transferred (either from the original or a subsequent EFA account) to the particular EFA account.

The effect of subsection 148.1(3) is to include in the income of the taxpayer the lesser of the amount received and an amount which generally represents the income accumulated in the EFA account. If the amount received by the taxpayer is greater than the amount included in the taxpayer's income, the excess generally represents a non-taxable refund of relevant contributions (represented by the variable C in the formula).

The description of C is amended so that its value is reduced, in effect, by any relevant contributions previously transferred from the EFA account to another EFA account. This ensures that the amount of the transferred relevant contribution (which, by virtue of subsection 148.1(3), can be distributed from the recipient EFA account tax-free) cannot also be used to support a subsequent tax-free withdrawal from the transferor EFA account.

The description of C is amended to provide that its value is determined by the formula

For this purpose, the value of D is the amount determined under the existing description of C. The value of E is the total of all amounts each of which is

- an amount which was previously transferred from the EFA account and deemed, by new subsection 148.1(4), to be a distribution minus

- the portion of the deemed distribution that was required, by subsection 148.1(3), to be included in computing a taxpayer's income.

Related Provisions [subsec. 148.1(3)]: 12(1)(z.4) — Inclusion into income from property; 212(1)(v) — Withholding tax on payment to non-resident; 257 — Formula amounts cannot calculate to less than zero.

History [148.1(3)]: Subsec. 148.1(3) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 177(6), applicable to 1993 et seq. Subsec. 148.1(3) formerly read:

(3) Where at any particular time in a taxation year a particular amount is distributed (otherwise than as payment for the provision of funeral services with respect to an individual) to a taxpayer from an arrangement that was, at the time it was established, an eligible funeral arrangement and the particular amount is paid from the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement, there shall be added in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from property the lesser of the particular amount and the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement immediately before the particular time;

B is the total of all payments made from the arrangement before the particular time for the provision of funeral services with respect to the individual; and

C is the total of all relevant contributions made before that time in respect of the individual under the particular arrangement.

Regulations [subsec. 148.1(3)]: 201(1)(f) (information return).

Interpretation Bulletins [subsec. 148.1(3)]: IT-531: Eligible funeral arrangements.

Proposed Addition — 148.1(4), (5)

(4) Deemed distribution on transfer — If at a particular time an amount relating to the balance in respect of an individual (referred to in this subsection and subsection (5) as the "transferor") under an eligible funeral arrangement (referred to in this subsection and subsection (5) as the "transferor arrangement") is transferred, credited or added to the balance in respect of the same or another individual (referred to in this subsection and subsection (5) as the "recipient") under the same or another eligible funeral arrangement (referred to in this subsection and subsection (5) as the "recipient arrangement"),

(a) the amount is deemed to be distributed to the transferor (or, if the transferor is deceased at the particular time, to the recipient) at the particular time from the transferor arrangement and to be paid from the balance in respect of the transferor under the transferor arrangement; and

(b) the amount is deemed to be a contribution made (other than by way of a transfer from an eligible funeral arrangement) at the particular time under the recipient arrangement for the purpose of funding funeral or cemetery services with respect to the recipient.

Related Provisions [subsec. 148.1(4)]: 148.1(5) — No deemed distribution on transfer to same individual.

(5) Non-application of subsection (4) — Subsection (4) does not apply if

(a) the transferor and the recipient are the same individual;

(b) the amount that is transferred, credited or added to the balance in respect of the individual under the recipient arrangement is equal to the balance in respect of the individual under the transferor arrangement immediately before the particular time; and

(c) the transferor arrangement is terminated immediately after the transfer.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 86(3), will add subsecs. 148.1(4) and (5), applicable to amounts that are transferred, credited or added after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 148.1 is amended to provide specific rules relating to transfers from one EFA account to another. In general terms, the changes are as follows:

- A new provision (paragraph 148.1(4)(a)) deems the transferred amount to be distributed to the individual from whose EFA account the amount is transferred. However, if that individual is deceased, the amount is deemed to be distributed to the individual to whose EFA account the amount is transferred. This ensures that the transfer is included in income (to the extent that it does not exceed the income accumulated in the transferor account).
- A new provision (paragraph 148.1(4)(b)) deems the transferred amount to be a contribution made to the recipient EFA account other than by way of transfer. This ensures that the earnings portion of the transferred amount is not taxed again when it is distributed from the recipient EFA account. . . .
- A new provision (subsection 148.1(5)) provides that these new rules do not apply if the transferor and the recipient EFA accounts are in respect of the same person, the entire balance in the transferor account is transferred to the recipient account and the transferor EFA account is terminated immediately after the transfer.

These changes are described in more detail below. . . .

New subsection 148.1(4) contains rules that apply when an amount is transferred from one EFA account to another EFA account of the same or another person.

Paragraph 148.1(4)(a) deems the transfer to be a distribution from the transferor EFA account. If the individual from whose account the amount is transferred is alive at the time of the transfer, that individual is deemed to be the recipient of the distribution. Otherwise, the recipient is deemed to be the individual to whose EFA account the amount is transferred. This deeming provision ensures that subsection 148.1(3) applies to the transfer. Consequently, the transferred amount will be included in computing the income of the deemed recipient, except to the extent that the transferred amount exceeds the income accumulated in the transferor EFA account.

Paragraph 148.1(4)(b) deems the amount transferred to be a contribution made (otherwise than by way of transfer) under the recipient EFA account. This ensures that the income portion of the transferred amount (which is included in income, under subsection 148.1(3), as a distribution from the transferor account) is considered to be a "relevant contribution" in respect of the recipient EFA account (which it would not otherwise be, because of the definition "relevant contribution" in subsection 148.1(1)). This allows it to subsequently be withdrawn from the recipient EFA account on a tax-free basis.

New subsection 148.1(5) provides that new subsection 148.1(4) does not apply when the entire balance of an individual's EFA account is transferred to another EFA account of the same individual and the transferor EFA account is terminated immediately after the transfer. Consequently, there will be no deemed distribution resulting from such a transfer.

New subsection 148.1(5) applies to transfers made after December 20, 2002.

Paul sets up an EFA account for the pre-funding of his funeral expenses. He contributes $10,000 to his account, and earns $7,000 of interest in the account. Paul transfers $3,000 to an EFA account which he establishes for his daughter, Gaby.

The transferred amount is deemed to be a distribution to Paul under new paragraph 148.1(4)(a). Consequently, Paul includes in his income, under subsection 148.1(3), an amount of $3,000, which is the lesser of

- $3,000, which is the amount distributed, and
- $7,000, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

The transfer is treated, in effect, as a distribution of a portion of the income accumulated in the plan.

Under new paragraph 148.1(4)(b), the transferred amount is also deemed to be a contribution made, other than by way of transfer, to Gaby's EFA account. Thus, the $3,000 is considered to be a relevant contribution in respect of Gaby's EFA account, and can subsequently be withdrawn tax-free.

Example 2

The facts are the same as in Example 1, except that Paul transfers $13,000 to Gaby's EFA.

The transferred amount is deemed to be a distribution to Paul under new paragrap 148.1(4)(a). Consequently, Paul includes in his income, under subsection 148.1(3), an amount of $7,000, which is the lesser of

- $13,000, which is the amount distributed, and
- $7,000, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

The transfer is treated, in effect, as a distribution of all of the income accumulated in the plan ($7,000), which is taxable, plus a return of a portion of the relevant contributions in respect of the EFA ($6,000), which is not taxable.

Under new paragraph 148.1(4)(b), the transferred amount is also deemed to be a contribution made, other than by way of transfer, to Gaby's EFA account. This has no particular significance with respect to the portion of the transfer that represents relevant contributions in respect of Paul's EFA account, since this amount would be considered to be a relevant contribution to Gaby's EFA account under the existing rules. However, it does have significance with respect to the portion of the transfer that represents income in Paul's EFA account, in that it allows that portion to become a relevant contribution in respect of Gaby's EFA account which can then be withdrawn from Gaby's account tax-free.

The facts are the same as in Example 2. After the transfer of $13,000, the balance in Paul's EFA account is $4,000, all of which represents relevant contributions in respect of the account. Over the next few years, the account earns an additional $2,500 of interest. Paul then withdraws the entire balance from the account.

The withdrawal is a distribution under subsection 148.1(3). Consequently, Paul includes $2,500 in his income, which is the lesser of:

- $6,500, which is the amount of the withdrawal, and
- $2,500, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

= $6,500 + 0 – ($10,000 – $6,000)

The value of E ($6,000) is the excess of the amount that was previously transferred and to which subsection 148.1(4) applied ($13,000) over the portion of that amount that was included in income under subsection 148.1(3) ($7,000).

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 87, will amend subsec. 149(1.3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(1.3) provides that, for the purposes of applying paragraph 149(1)(d.5) and subsection 149(1.2) to a corporation, 90% of the capital of the corporation is considered to be owned by one or more municipalities only if the municipalities are entitled to at least 90% of the votes associated with the shares of the corporation.

Subsection 149(1.3) is replaced, applicable to taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002, to provide that paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) do not apply to exempt a person's taxable income for a period in a taxation year in two cases.

First, under new paragraph 149(1.3)(a), a corporation is not exempt from tax on its taxable income for period in a taxation year if at any time during the period the corporation has issued shares that are owned by one or more persons (other than by certain tax-exempts) that, in total, give them more that 10% of the votes that could be cast at a meeting of shareholders. For this purpose, shares are not taken into account if they are owned by

- Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,
- a municipality in Canada, or
- a commission, an association or a corporation, to which any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) apply.

Second, under new paragraph 149(1.3)(b), a person is not exempt because of any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) from tax on taxable income for a period in a taxation year if at any time in the period the person is, or would be if the person were a corporation, controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person (or by a group of persons that includes a person) other than:

- Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,
- a municipality in Canada, or
- a commission, an association or a corporation, to which any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) apply.

For further details about the expression "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever", reference should be made to subsections 256(5.1) and (6). In general, the expression refers to a controller who has any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the person.

History: Subsec. 149(2) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 88(2), applicable to 1992 et seq. Subsec. (2) formerly read:

> (b) there shall be included any amount that has been deducted under this subsection for the immediately preceding taxation year.

(10) Exempt corporations [becoming or ceasing to be exempt] — Where, at any time (in this subsection referred to as "that time"), a corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income otherwise than by reason of paragraph (1)(t), the following rules apply:

(a) the taxation year of the corporation that would otherwise have included that time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time, a new taxation year of the corporation is deemed to have begun at that time and, for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's fiscal period after that time, the taxpayer is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time;

(a.1) for the purpose of computing the corporation's income for its first taxation year ending after that time, the corporation shall be deemed to have deducted under sections 20, 138 and 140 in computing its income for its taxation year ending immediately before that time, the greatest amount that could have been claimed or deducted for that year as a reserve under those sections;

(b) the corporation is deemed to have disposed, at the time (in this subsection referred to as the "disposition time") that is immediately before the time that is immediately before that time, of each property that was owned by it immediately before that time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time and to have reacquired the property at that time at a cost equal to that fair market value;

(c) for the purposes of applying sections 37, 65 to 66.4, 66.7, 111 and 126, subsections 127(5) to (26) and section 127.3 to the corporation, the corporation is deemed to be a new corporation the first taxation year of which began at that time; and

(c) for the purposes of applying sections 37, 65 to 66.4, 66.7, 94.1 to 94.4, 111 and 126, subsections 127(5) to (35) and section 127.3 to the corporation, the corporation is deemed to be a new corporation the first taxation year of which began at that time; and

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), s. 30, will amend para. 149(10)(c) to read as above, applicable to each corporation that, after 2002, becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax on its taxable income under Part I of the Act.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(10) of the Act applies where, at a particular time, a corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax under Part I on its taxable income (otherwise than by reason of the exemption for certain insurers in paragraph 149(1)(t)). A new taxation year is considered to start at the particular time and the corporation's properties are deemed to have been disposed of at fair market value and reacquired at the particular time for the same amount.

Paragraph 149(10)(c) provides that the corporation is, for specified purposes in the Act, treated as a new corporation. One of the specified purposes is with regard to the investment tax credit regime set out in subsections 127(5) to (26).

Paragraph 149(10)(c) is amended so that it is also relevant in applying

- additional rules for the investment tax credit that are set out in subsections 127(27) to (35) (this amendment is consequential on the earlier enactment of those subsections), and
- sections 94.1 to 94.4. (For example, a corporation's "deferral amount" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) in respect of any interest it holds in a foreign investment entity is determined without reference to taxation years that occurred before the corporation's change of status. This will typically result in a nil deferral amount for the corporation.)

(d) where, immediately before the disposition time, the corporation's cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business exceeds the total of

(i) ¾ of the fair market value of the eligible capital property in respect of the business, and

(ii) the amount otherwise deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income from the business for the taxation year that ended immediately before that time, the excess shall be deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income from the business for the taxation year that ended immediately before that time.

> (a) the taxation year of the corporation that would otherwise have included that time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before that time and a new taxation year of the corporation shall be deemed to have commenced at that time;

(b) the corporation shall be deemed to have disposed, immediately before the time that is immediately before that time, of each property (other than, where, at that time, the corporation ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income, a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property) that was owned by it immediately before that time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time and to have reacquired the property at that time at a cost equal to that fair market value;

(c) where paragraph (b) applies in respect of depreciable property of the corporation and the capital cost thereof to the corporation immediately before the disposition exceeds the fair market value thereof at that time, for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a),

(i) the capital cost of the property to the corporation at that time shall be deemed to be the amount that was its capital cost thereof immediately before the disposition, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the corporation in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing its income for taxation years ending before that time; and

(d) notwithstanding section 111, no amount is deductible in computing the corporation's taxable income for a taxation year ending after that time in respect of a non-capital loss, net capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss for a taxation year ending before that time to the extent that the loss could have been applied to reduce the corporation's taxable income for taxation years ending before that time.

Charities

149.1 (1) Definitions — In this section,

Related Provisions: 172(6), 187.7 — Application of subsec. 149.1(1).

"charitable foundation" means a corporation or trust that is constituted and operated exclusively for charitable purposes, no part of the income of which is payable to, or is otherwise available for, the personal benefit of any proprietor, member, shareholder, trustee or settlor thereof, and that is not a charitable organization;

Related Provisions: 149 — Exemptions; 149.1(6.1) — Charitable purposes; 149.1(12)(b) — Rules — income.

"charitable organization" means an organization, whether or not incorporated,

(a) all the resources of which are devoted to charitable activities carried on by the organization itself,

(b) no part of the income of which is payable to, or is otherwise available for, the personal benefit of any proprietor, member, shareholder, trustee or settlor thereof,

(c) more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or like officials of which deal with each other and with each of the other directors, trustees, officers or officials at arm's length, and

(d) where it has been designated as a private foundation or public foundation pursuant to subsection (6.3) of this section or subsection 110(8.1) or (8.2) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, or has applied after February 15, 1984 for registration under paragraph 110(8)(c) of that Act or under the definition "registered charity" in subsection 248(1), not more than 50% of the capital of which has been contributed or otherwise paid into the organization by one person or members of a group of persons who do not deal with each other at arm's length and, for the purpose of this paragraph, a reference to any person or to members of a group does not include a reference to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, or any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l);

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(1)"charitable organization"(c), (d)

(c) more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or like officials of which deal at arm's length with each other and with

(i) each of the other directors, trustees, officers and like officials of the organization, and

(ii) each person who, and each member of a group of persons who do not deal with each other at arm's length that, has contributed or otherwise paid into the organization more than 50% of the capital of the organization (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)), and

(d) that is not, and would not be if the organization were a corporation, controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever

(i) by a person that has contributed or otherwise paid into the organization more than 50% of the capital of the organization (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)), or

(ii) by a group of persons that do not deal at arm's length with each other, if any member of the group does not deal at arm's length with a person described in subparagraph (i);

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 88(1), will amend paras. (c) and (d) of the definition "charitable organization" in subsec. 149.1(1) to read as above, applicable after 1999 except that, in respect of a charitable organization that was not designated as a private foundation or a public foundation under subsec. 149.1(6.3) or under subsec. 110(8.1) or (8.2), as enacted by R.S.C. 1952, c. 148 [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8.1), (8.2) on TaxPartner or taxnet.pro], and has not applied after February 15, 1984 for registration under para. 110(8)(c) of that Act [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8)] or under the definition "registered charity" in subsec. 248(1), subpara. (c)(ii) of the definition "charitable organization", as amended, applies after 2004.

Technical Notes: The definition "charitable organization" provides that more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or similar officials of a charitable organization must deal with each other and with each of the other directors, trustees, officers or similar officials at arm's length.

For a charity that has applied for registration after February 15, 1984 and which has been designated as a private or public foundation, the definition "charitable organization" also requires that not more than 50% of the charity's capital be contributed by a person or group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length. This definition is amended to replace the "contribution" test with a "control" test. As a result, a charity will not be disqualified from being treated as a charitable organization solely because a person, or a group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length, has contributed more than 50% of the charity's capital. However, such a person or group is not permitted to control the charity in any way, nor may the person or the members of the group represent more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers and similar officials of the charity.

Letter from Department of Finance, September 11, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am responding to your recent inquiry concerning the capital restriction in the definition of charitable organization of not more than 50% of the capital contributed to the organization by one person or a group of persons not dealing at arm's length.

This matter has been brought to our attention recently in the context that it could have unintentional implications prohibiting large one-time donations.

From a tax policy perspective, we agree that the income tax provisions should not have the effect of prohibiting or limiting charitable giving. Under the current definition of "charitable organization", the capital restriction of not more than 50% could unintentionally have that effect.

Consequently, and in light of the other restrictions in the income tax provisions including disbursements requirements, we are recommending to the Minister of Finance that the definition "charitable organization" in subsection 149.1(1) of the Act be amended to ensure that in certain circumstances large donations are not prohibited. In particular, we are recommending the replacement of the current contribution test with a post-donation test. This test will require that, at all times after the donation, any person (or group of persons not dealing at arm's length) contributing more than 50% of the capital of the organization must deal at arm's length with more than half of the directors, trustees and officers of the organization, and must not have any direct or indirect influence over the organization such that, if exercised, it would be reasonable to conclude that the person (or group) controls the organization or one or more activities of the organization.

We are recommending that such an amendment apply for the purpose of determining an organization's status after 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future income tax technical bill.

Yours sincerely,
Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(1)"public foundation"

"public foundation" means a charitable foundation

(a) of which more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers and like officials deal at arm's length with each other and with

(i) each of the other directors, trustees, officers and like officials of the foundation, and

(ii) each person who, and each member of a group of persons who do not deal with each other at arm's length that, has contributed or otherwise paid into the foundation more than 50% of the capital of the foundation (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)),

(b) that is not, and would not be if the foundation were a corporation, controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever

(i) by a person that has contributed or otherwise paid into the foundation more than 50% of the capital of the organization (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)), or

(ii) by a group of persons that do not deal at arm's length with each other, if any any member of the group does not deal at arm's length with a person described in subparagraph (i);

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 88(4), will amend the definition "public foundation" in subsec. 149.1(1) to read as above, applicable after 1999 except that, in respect of a charitable organization that was not designated as a private foundation or a charitable organization under subsec. 149.1(6.3) or under subsec. 110(8.1) or (8.2), as enacted by R.S.C. 1952, c. 148 [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8.1), (8.2) on TaxPartner or taxnet.pro], and has not applied after February 15, 1984 for registration under para. 110(8)(c) of that Act [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8)] or under the definition "registered charity" in subsec. 248(1), para. (b) of the definition "public foundation", as amended, is in its application before 2005 to be read

(a) without reference to the expression "(other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l))"; and

(b) as if the reference to "50%" in that paragraph were read as a reference to "75%".

Technical Notes: The definition "public foundation" provides that more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or similar officials of a public foundation must deal with each other and with each of the other directors, trustees, officers or similar officials at arm's length.

This definition requires that not more than 50% (75% in some cases) of the foundation's capital can be contributed by a person or group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length. The "contribution" test in the definition is replaced by a "control" test. As a result, a foundation will not be disqualified from being treated as a public foundation solely because a person, or a group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length, has contributed more than 50% of the foundation's capital. However, such a person or group is not permitted to control the foundation in any way, nor may the person or the members of the group represent more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers and similar officials of the foundation.

Letter from Department of Finance, December 13, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated November 14, 2002, in which you requested that the definition of a "public foundation" in the Income Tax Act be amended in a manner similar to the change that has been proposed in respect of charitable organizations.

In particular, we have agreed to recommend an amendment that will replace the current contribution test for charitable organizations with a test applying after a donation is made. Under this test, any person (or group of persons not dealing at arm's length) contributing more than 50% of the capital of the organization must deal at arm's length with more than half of the directors, trustees and officers of the organization, and must not have any direct or indirect influence over the organization such that, if exercised, it would be reasonable to conclude that the person (or group) controls the organization or one or more activities of the organization.

As the policy objectives for rules regarding the control of charitable organizations are similar to those for public foundations, we agree that it would be appropriate to recommend that the definitions of each remain similar in this respect. We will also recommend that such an amendment apply for the purpose of determining a foundation's status after 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,
Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a) to have been expended on charitable activities carried on by the charity in the taxation year in which it was so accumulated; and

(b) not to have been expended in any other year.

History: Subsec. 149.1(8) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 74(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1992. That subsec. formerly read:

> (8) A registered charity may, with the approval in writing of the Minister, accumulate property for a particular purpose on such terms and conditions and over such period of time, if any, as is specified by the Minister in the approval, and any property accumulated after receipt of such an approval and in accordance therewith, including any income earned in respect of the property so accumulated, shall be deemed to have been expended on charitable activities carried on by the charity in the taxation year in which it was so accumulated.

(9) Idem — Property accumulated by a registered charity as provided in subsection (8), including any income earned in respect of that property, that is not used for the particular purpose for which it was accumulated either

(a) before the expiration of any period of time specified by the Minister in the Minister's approval of the accumulation, or

(b) at an earlier time at which the registered charity decides not to use the property for that purpose shall, notwithstanding subsection (8), be deemed to be income of the charity for, and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in, its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires or the time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs, as the case may be.

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(9) closing words is, notwithstanding subsection 149.1(8), deemed to be income of the charity for, and the eligible amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in, its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires or the time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs, as the case may be.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 88(8), will amend the closing words of subsec. 149.1(9) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149.1(8) permits a registered charity, with the approval of the Minister of National Revenue, to accumulate property over a specified period for a particular purpose. The amount of such property accumulated is deemed to have been expended in the taxation year of the charity in which it was accumulated. If in fact the charity defaults on this responsibility by not using the property for the approved purpose within the specified period, subsection 149.1(9) treats that property as income of the charity and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt. This affects the calculation of the disbursement quota of the charity, with the result that the amount of the property must be actually disbursed in the year following default.

Subsection 149.1(9) is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(30), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to provide that the amount of a gift for which a tax receipt is issued refers to the "eligible amount" of a gift. For additional information, see the commentary to new subsection 248(30).

Related Provisions: 248(30)–(33) — Determination of eligible amount of gift.

History: That portion of subsec. 149.1(9) following para. (b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 123(5), applicable to 1988 et seq. That portion formerly read:

> shall, notwithstanding subsection (8), be deemed to be income of the charity and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in paragraph 110.1(1)(a) or subsection 118.1(2) in its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires if that paragraph is applicable or in which the earlier time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs if that paragraph is applicable.

(10) Deemed charitable activity — An amount paid by a charitable organization to a qualified donee that is not paid out of the income of the charitable organization shall be deemed to be a devotion of a resource of the charitable organization to a charitable activity carried on by it.

Related Provisions: 149.1(12)(b) — Rules — income.

(11) [Repealed under former Act]

(12) Rules — For the purposes of this section,

(a) a corporation is controlled by a charitable foundation if more than 50% of the corporation's issued share capital, having full voting rights under all circumstances, belongs to

(i) the foundation, or

(ii) the foundation and persons with whom the foundation does not deal at arm's length,

but, for the purpose of paragraph (3)(c) or (4)(c), as the case may be, a charitable foundation shall be deemed not to have acquired control of a corporation if it has not purchased or otherwise acquired for consideration more than 5% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of that corporation;

(b) there shall be included in computing the income of a charity for a taxation year all gifts received by it in the year including gifts from any other charity but not including

(i) a specified gift or a gift referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of the description of A in the definition "disbursement quota" in subsection (1),

(ii) any gift or portion of a gift in respect of which it is established that the donor is not a charity and

(A) has not been allowed a deduction under paragraph 110.1(1)(a) in computing the donor's taxable income or under subsection 118.1(3) in computing the donor's tax payable under this Part, or

(B) was not taxable under section 2 for the taxation year in which the gift was made, or

(iii) any gift or portion of a gift in respect of which it is established that the donor is a charity and that the gift was not made out of the income of the donor; and

(c) subsections 104(6) and (12) are not applicable in computing the income of a charitable foundation that is a trust.

(13) Designation of private foundation as public — On application made to the Minister by a private foundation, the Minister may, on such terms and conditions as the Minister considers appropriate, designate the foundation to be a public foundation, and on and after the date specified in such a designation, the foundation to which it relates shall, until such time, if any, as the Minister revokes the designation, be deemed to be a public foundation.

(15) Information may be communicated — Notwithstanding section 241,

(a) the information contained in a public information return referred to in subsection (14) shall be communicated or otherwise made available to the public by the Minister in such manner as the Minister deems appropriate; and

(b) the Minister may make available to the public in such manner as the Minister deems appropriate an annual listing of all registered or previously registered charities indicating for each the name, location, registration number, date of registration and, in the case of a charity the registration of which has been revoked, annulled or terminated, the effective date of the revocation, annulment or termination.

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(15)(b)

(b) the Minister may make available to the public in such manner as the Minister deems appropriate a listing of all registered, or previously registered, charities and Canadian amateur athletic associations that indicates for each of them

(i) its name and address,

(ii) its registration number and date of registration, and

(iii) the effective date of any revocation, annulment or termination of its registration.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 88(9), will amend para. 149.1(15)(b) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Section 241 prohibits the use or communication by an official of information obtained under the Act unless specifically authorized by one of the exceptions found in that section. Paragraph 149.1(15)(b), which deals with charities, provides that, notwithstanding section 241, the Minister of National Revenue may publish a listing of all registered or previously registered charities indicating the name, location, registration number and, where the charity is no longer registered, the effective date of the revocation, annulment or termination of the charity's registration. This provision does not currently allow for the release of similar information in respect of registered Canadian amateur athletic associations. Since taxpayers who make donations to such associations obtain the same tax relief that is available in respect of donations to registered charities and, since subsection 149.1(15) is intended to provide transparency for the benefit of potential donors, paragraph 149.1(15)(b) is amended, effective after Royal Assent to this measure, to allow for the release of such information in respect of Canadian amateur athletic associations.

Related Provisions: 241(3.2) — Additional disclosure permitted of charity information.

(16)–(19) [Repealed under former Act]

(20) Rule regarding disbursement excess — Where a registered charity has expended a disbursement excess for a taxation year, the charity may, for the purpose of determining whether it complies with the requirements of paragraph (2)(b), (3)(b) or (4)(b), as the case may be, for the immediately preceding taxation year of the charity and 5 or less of its immediately subsequent taxation years, include in the computation of the amounts expended on charitable activities carried on by it and by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees, such portion of that disbursement excess as was not so included under this subsection for any preceding taxation year.

Forms: RC4108: Registered charities and the Income Tax Act [guide].

(21) Definition of "disbursement excess" — For the purpose of subsection (20), "disbursement excess" for a taxation year of a charity means the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of amounts expended in the year by the charity on charitable activities carried on by it or by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees

exceeds

(b) in the case of a charitable foundation, its disbursement quota for the year, and

(c) in the case of a charitable organization, the total of Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 90, will amend para. 157(3)(c) to read as above, applicable to 1999 et seq.

Technical Notes: Section 157 requires a corporation to pay monthly instalments of its total tax payable under Parts I, I.3, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 of the Act. Subsection 157(3) allows corporations to reduce each monthly instalment by 1/12 of the amount of certain tax refunds, including the "dividend refund" under section 129. For most mutual fund corporations, the dividend refund amount is computed according to rules set out in subsection 131(5). Paragraph 157(3)(c), which allows a mutual fund corporation to apply its dividend refund to reduce its instalments, therefore refers to subsection 131(5). However, prescribed labour-sponsored venture capital corporations (LSVCCs), which are by definition mutual fund corporations, do not use subsection 131(5) to compute their dividend refunds — instead, they use special rules in subsection 131(11). To ensure that subsection 157(3) applies appropriately to LSVCCs, this amendment adds to paragraph 157(3)(c) a reference to subsection 131(11).

(d) where the corporation is a non-resident-owned investment corporation, 1/12 of the corporation's allowable refund (within the meaning assigned by section 133) for the year, and

(e) 1/12 of the total of the amounts each of which is deemed by subsection 125.4(3), 125.5(3), 127.1(1) or 127.41(3) to have been paid on account of the corporation's tax payable under this Part for the year.

Related Provisions: 131(5) — Dividend refund to mutual fund corporation; 136 — Cooperative not private corporation — exception.

History: Para. 157(3)(e) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 184(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994 except that,

(a) for taxation years that ended before 1995, the para. shall be read without reference to "125.4(3)"; and

(b) for taxation years that ended before November 1997, the para. shall be read without reference to "125.5(3)".

Para. 157(3)(e) formerly read:

(3) Personal liability — Where a legal representative (other than a trustee in bankruptcy) of a taxpayer distributes to one or more persons property in the possession or control of the legal representative, acting in that capacity, without obtaining a certificate under subsection (2) in respect of the amounts referred to in that subsection, the legal representative is personally liable for the payment of those amounts to the extent of the value of the property distributed, and the Minister may at any time assess the legal representative in respect of any amount payable because of this subsection, and the provisions of this Division apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, to an assessment made under this subsection as though it had been made under section 152.

Proposed Amendment — 159(3)

(3) Personal liability — If a legal representative (other than a trustee in bankruptcy) of a taxpayer distributes to one or more persons property in the possession or control of the legal representative, acting in that capacity, without obtaining a certificate under subsection (2) in respect of the amounts referred to in that subsection,

(a) the legal representative is personally liable for the payment of those amounts to the extent of the value of the property distributed;

(b) the Minister may at any time assess the legal representative in respect of any amount payable because of this subsection; and

(c) the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, to an assessment made under this subsection as though it had been made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 91, will amend subsec. 159(3) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 159(1) provides, in part, that a legal representative acting for another person is jointly and severally liable for each amount payable by the other person under the Act, to the extent that the representative has possession and control of the other person's assets. If the representative distributes assets of the other person before obtaining a certificate from the Minister of National Revenue that the other person's tax debts have been paid, the Minister may, under subsection 159(3), assess the representative for the amount of the debt.

Subsection 159(3) is amended to clarify that a legal representative so assessed after December 20, 2002 is subject to interest on the assessment without any limit on the amount of interest for which the representative may be liable.

I.T. Technical News: No. 4 (section 160 — the Davis case).

(1.1) Joint liability where subsec. 69(11) applies — Where a particular person or partnership is deemed by subsection 69(11) to have disposed of a property at any time, the person referred to in that subsection to whom a benefit described in that subsection was available in respect of a subsequent disposition of the property or property substituted for the property is jointly and severally liable with each other taxpayer to pay a part of the other taxpayer's liabilities under this Act in respect of each taxation year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of amounts payable under this Act by the other taxpayer in respect of the year, and

B is the amount that would, if the particular person or partnership were not deemed by subsection 69(11) to have disposed of the property, be determined for A in respect of the other taxpayer in respect of the year, but nothing under this subsection is deemed to limit the liability of the other taxpayer under any other provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160(1.1) closing words

but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the other taxpayer under any other provision of this Act or of any person for the interest that the person is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the person is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 92(2), will amend the closing words of subsec. 160(1.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160(1.1) provides that where subsection 69(11) applies to deem a disposition of property to have occurred at fair market value, both the person disposing of the property and the person acquiring the property are jointly and severally liable for the payment of each other's liabilities arising under the Act as a result of that disposition. The Minister of National Revenue may assess the person for such a liability under subsection 160(2). Subsection 160(1.1) is amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that the assessment of the taxpayer is subject to interest. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC) — ed.]

History: Subsec. 160(1.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 186(1), applicable in respect of dispositions that are deemed by subsec. 69(11) to occur after April 26, 1995.

(1.2) Joint liability — tax on split income — A parent of a specified individual is jointly and severally liable with the individual for the amount required to be added because of subsection 120.4(2) in computing the specified individual's tax payable under this Part for a taxation year if, during the year, the parent

(a) carried on a business that purchased goods or services from a business the income of which is directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year;

(b) was a specified shareholder of a corporation that purchased goods or services from a business the income of which is directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year;

Proposed Amendment — 160(1.2)(a), (b)

(a) carried on a business that was provided property or services by a partnership or trust all or a portion of the income of which partnership or trust is directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year,

(b) was a specified shareholder of a corporation that was provided property or services by a partnership or trust all or a portion of the income of which partnership or trust is directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year,

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 92(3), will amend paras. 160(1.2)(a) and (b) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160(1.2), which applies in respect of tax owing on split income, is amended in two respects.

First, paragraphs 160(1.2)(a), (b) and (d) are amended to replace the phrase "goods or services" with the phrase "property or services" as a consequence of the same changes made to paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "split income" in subsection 120.4(1).

(c) was a specified shareholder of a corporation, dividends on the shares of the capital stock of which were directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year;

(d) was a shareholder of a professional corporation that purchased goods or services from a business the income of which is directly or indirectly included in computing the individual's split income for the year; or

160.3 (1) Liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RCA trust — Where an amount required to be included in the income of a taxpayer by virtue of paragraph 56(1)(x) is received by a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, that person is jointly and severally liable with the taxpayer to pay a part of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for the taxation year in which the amount is received equal to the amount by which the taxpayer's tax for the year exceeds the amount that would be the taxpayer's tax for the year if the amount had not been received, but nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to limit the liability of the taxpayer under any other provision of this Act.

(2) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable by the person by virtue of this section and the provisions of this Division are applicable, with such modifications as the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152.

(1) Liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RCA trust — If an amount required to be included in the income of a taxpayer because of paragraph 56(1)(x) is received by a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, that person is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the taxpayer to pay a part of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for the taxation year in which the amount is received equal to the amount by which the taxpayer's tax for the year exceeds the amount that would be the taxpayer's tax for the year if the amount had not been received, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the taxpayer under any other provision of this Act or of the person for the interest that the person is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the person is liable to pay because of this subsection.

(2) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable because of this section and the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 95, will amend subsecs. 160.3(1) and (2) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.3(1) provides that a person who receives benefits from a retirement compensation arrangement that relate to another taxpayer's employment is jointly and severally liable for the portion of that other taxpayer's tax that is attributable to such benefits. The Minister of National Revenue may assess the person for such a liability under subsection 160.3(2). Subsections 160.3(1) and (2) are amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that such an assessment is subject to interest, without any limit on the amount of interest for which the person may be liable. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

(3) Rules applicable — Where a taxpayer and another person have, by virtue of subsection (1), become jointly and severally liable in respect of part or all of a liability of the taxpayer under this Act, the following rules apply:

(a) a payment by the other person on account of the other person's liability shall to the extent thereof discharge the joint liability; but

(b) a payment by the taxpayer on account of the taxpayer's liability only discharges the other person's liability to the extent that the payment operates to reduce the taxpayer's liability to an amount less than the amount in respect of which the other person was, by subsection (1), made jointly and severally liable.

Related Provisions [s. 160.3]: Part XI.3 — Tax in respect of retirement compensation arrangements.

160.4 (1) Liability in respect of transfers by insolvent corporations — Where property is transferred at any time by a corporation to a taxpayer with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length at that time and the corporation is not entitled because of subsection 61.3(3) to deduct an amount under section 61.3 in computing its income for a taxation year because of the transfer or because of the transfer and one or more other transactions, the taxpayer is jointly and severally liable with the corporation to pay an amount of the corporation's tax under this Part for the year equal to the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the corporation under any other provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160.4(1)

(1) Liability in respect of transfers by insolvent corporations — If property is transferred at any time by a corporation to a taxpayer with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length at that time and the corporation is not entitled because of subsection 61.3(3) to deduct an amount under section 61.3 in computing its income for a taxation year because of the transfer or because of the transfer and one or more other transactions, the taxpayer is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the corporation to pay the lesser of the corporation's tax payable under this Part for the year and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the corporation under any other provision of this Act or of the taxpayer for the interest that the taxpayer is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the taxpayer is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 96(1), will amend subsec. 160.4(1) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.4(1) applies where a transfer of property has been made by a corporation and, as a consequence of the transfer (or the transfer combined with other transactions), the corporation is precluded under subsection 61.3(3) from deducting an amount under section 61.3. Where this is the case, the transferee is jointly and severally liable with the transferor under subsection 160.4(1) for the transferor's tax under Part I of the Act for the first taxation year of the transferor that ends after the time of the transfer and for preceding taxation years. The liability of the transferee applies up to the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the time of the transfer exceeds the fair market value of the consideration given for the property transferred.

In addition, subsection 160.4(2) provides for joint and several liability of subsequent non-arm's length transferees for the corporation's Part I tax if the original transferee makes a further non-arm's length transfer and one of the reasons that the transfer was made was to prevent the enforcement of section 160.4.

Under subsection 160.4(3), the Minister of National Revenue may assess a transferee for a liability arising under subsections 160.4(1) or (2).

Subsections 160.4(1), (2) and (3) are amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that such an assessment is subject to interest, without any limit on the amount of interest for which the transferee may be liable. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

Related Provisions: 160(3.1) — Fair market value of undivided interest in property.

(2) Indirect transfers — Where

(a) property is transferred at any time from a taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") to another taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "transferee") with whom the transferor does not deal at arm's length,

(b) the transferor is liable because of subsection (1) or this subsection to pay an amount of the tax of another person (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") under this Part, and

(c) it can reasonably be considered that one of the reasons of the transfer would, but for this subsection, be to prevent the enforcement of this section, the transferee is jointly and severally liable with the transferor and the debtor to pay an amount of the debtor's tax under this Part equal to the lesser of the amount of such tax that the transferor was liable to pay at that time and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the debtor or the transferor under any provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160.4(2) closing words

the transferee is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the transferor and the debtor to pay an amount of the debtor's tax under this Part equal to the lesser of the amount of that tax that the transferor was liable to pay at that time and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the debtor or the transferor under any provision of this Act or of the transferee for the interest that the transferee is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the transferee is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 96(2), will amend the closing words of subsec. 160.4(2) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 160.4(1).

(3) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable by the person because of this section and the provisions of this Division apply, with such modifications as the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section, as though it had been made under section 152.

Proposed Amendment — 160.4(3)

(3) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable by the person because of this section and the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section, as though it had been made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 96(3), will amend subsec. 160.4(3) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 160.4(1).

(4) Rules applicable — Where a corporation and another person have, because of subsection (1) or (2), become jointly and severally liable in respect of part or all of a liability of the corporation under this Act

(a) a payment by the other person on account of that person's liability shall to the extent thereof discharge the joint liability; and

(b) a payment by the corporation on account of the corporation's liability discharges the other person's liability only to the extent that the payment operates to reduce the corporation's liability to an amount less than the amount in respect of which the other person was, by subsection (1) or (2), as the case may be, made liable.

Proposed Amendment — Extension of s. 161.1 to individuals

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, February 28, 2000: Offsetting of Interest on Personal Tax Overpayments and Underpayments

(23) That, for individuals other than trusts, the taxable amount of refund interest accruing over any period after 1999 on overpayments of income tax be reduced by the amount of any arrears interest accruing over the same period on unpaid income tax.

Federal budget, supplementary information, February 28, 2000: Offsetting of Interest on Personal Tax Overpayments and Underpayments

An individual who has made an overpayment of income tax may be entitled to receive refund interest from the government on the overpayment. Refund interest is included in income for tax purposes, in the same manner as interest from other sources.

If, on the other hand, an individual has failed to pay an amount of income tax when due, the individual is required to pay arrears interest to the government. Arrears interest is not deductible in computing a taxpayer's income for tax purposes.

The taxation of refund interest and non-deductibility of arrears interest can produce inappropriate results in situations where an individual who owes interest on unpaid tax from one taxation year is concurrently owed interest on a tax overpayment from a different taxation year. In this circumstance, the cost of the non-deductible interest payable by the individual exceeds the after-tax value of the taxable interest receivable by the individual. In many instances, this difference results from the non-deductibility of interest paid and the inclusion in income of interest received.

This budget proposes a relieving mechanism for these individuals. Refund interest accruing over a period will be taxable only to the extent that it exceeds any arrears interest that accrued over the same period to which the refund interest relates. As under current practice, the individual's notice of assessment will indicate the full amount of refund interest. In addition, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency will issue an information slip indicating the amount, if any, of the refund interest that must be included in the individual's income for tax purposes.

This measure will apply to individuals other than trusts in respect of arrears and refund interest amounts that accrue concurrently after 1999, regardless of the taxation year to which the amounts relate.

Department of Finance news release Backgrounder, December 21, 2000: Offset Interest

The 2000 budget proposed an interest offset mechanism in respect of overpayments and underpayments of tax by individuals. The Department of Finance and the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency are working to develop a mechanism under which this proposal can be given effect, for implementation at the earliest opportunity.

Proposed Amendment — 162(10.1)A(d)

(d) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.2 in respect of a trust, 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution of the person or partnership made to the trust before the end of the last taxation year of the trust in respect of which the return is required,

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 33(2), will amend para. (d) of the description of A in subsec 162(10.1) to read as above, applicable to returns in respect of taxation years that begin after 2002, and to returns in respect of taxation years that begin

(a) after 2000, if the return relates to a trust that makes a valid election under para. (a) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94; and

(b) after 2001, if the return relates to a trust that makes a valid election under para. (a) or (b) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94.

Technical Notes: Subsection 162(10.1) of the Act imposes a penalty on any person or partnership that is more than 24 months late in filing an information return that the person or partnership was required to file under any of sections 233.1 to 233.4. (This penalty applies in addition to the penalties imposed under subsections 162(7) and (10).)

The penalty imposed under subsection 162(10.1) with respect to a particular information return is equal to a specified amount less the amount of the penalties imposed under subsections 162(7) and (10) with respect to the return. The specified amount with respect to an information return for a trust required to be filed by a person or partnership under section 233.2 is equal to 5% of the total fair market value of any property transferred or loaned to the trust that, if no other loan or transfer were taken into account, would have imposed an obligation on the person or partnership to file the return.

Subsection 162(10.1) is amended, as a consequence of amendments made to section 233.2, by changing the manner in which the specified amount is determined. The specified amount is now to be determined with reference to the fair market value of "contributions" made by the person or partnership to the trust.

(e) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.3 for a taxation year or fiscal period, 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a specified foreign property (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)) of the person or partnership, and

(f) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 for a taxation year or fiscal period in respect of a foreign affiliate of the person or partnership, 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a property of the person or partnership that is a share of the capital stock or indebtedness of the affiliate, and

B is the total of the penalties to which the person or partnership is liable under subsections (7) and (10) in respect of the return.

History: Subsec. 162(10.1) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 51(3), applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

Proposed Addition — 162(10.11)

(10.11) Application to trust contributions — In paragraph (d) of the description of A in subsection (10.1), subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) apply, except that the references to the expression "(other than a restricted property)" in the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsection 94(1) are to be read as references to the expression "(other than property that is not described in any of subclauses (b)(i)(A)(I) to (III) but to which paragraph 94(2)(g) applies)".

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 33(3), will add subsec. 162(10.11), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to 162(10.1)A(d).

Technical Notes: New subsection 162(10.11) provides that, for the purpose of the calculation in subsection 162(10.1), the definitions and rules in subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) generally apply. Subsection 162(10.11) is similar to amended subsection

(10.2) Shares or debt owned by controlled foreign affiliate — For the purpose of paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1),

(a) shares or indebtedness owned by a controlled foreign affiliate of a person or partnership are deemed to be owned by the person or partnership; and

(b) the cost amount at any time of such shares or indebtedness to the person or partnership is deemed to be equal to 20% of the cost amount at that time to the controlled foreign affiliate of the shares or indebtedness.

Related Provisions: 162(10.3) — Application to partnerships; 162(10.4) — Application to non-resident trusts.

Proposed Amendment — 162(10.3) opening words

(10.3) Application to partnerships — For the purposes of paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1) and subsection (10.2), in determining whether a nonresident corporation is a foreign affiliate or a controlled foreign affiliate of a partnership,

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 33(4), will amend the opening words of subsec. 162(10.3) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the amendment to 162(10.1)A(d).

Technical Notes: Existing paragraph 94(1)(d) of the Act provides for non-resident trusts to be treated as foreign affiliates. It is being repealed as a consequence of the introduction of new rules for non-resident trusts in section 94. Subsections 162(10.3) and (10.4) are rules that affect the calculation of penalty tax in respect of a person's or partnership's failure to file a return in respect of a foreign affiliate.

Subsections 163(2.6) and (2.91) are similar provisions that affect the calculation of penalty tax in respect of false statements and omissions in such a return.

Subsections 162(10.3) and 163(2.6) are amended to reflect the changes to section 94 under which non-resident trusts are no longer treated as foreign affiliates. Subsections 162(10.4) and 163(2.91) are repealed for the same reason.

(a) the definitions "direct equity percentage" and "equity percentage" in subsection 95(4) shall be read as if a partnership were a person; and

(b) the definitions "controlled foreign affiliate" and "foreign affiliate" in subsection 95(1) shall be read as if a partnership were a taxpayer resident in Canada.

History: Subsec. 162(10.3) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 51(3), applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

(10.4) Application to non-resident trusts — For the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1) and subsection (10.2),

(a) a non-resident trust is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of each beneficiary of which the trust is a controlled foreign affiliate for the purpose of section 233.4;

(b) the trust is deemed to be a non-resident corporation having a capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares;

(c) each beneficiary under the trust is deemed to own at any time the number of the issued shares of the corporation that is equal to the proportion of 100 that

(i) the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust is of

(ii) the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust; and

(d) the cost amount to a beneficiary at any time of a share of the corporation is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust, and

B is the number of shares deemed under paragraph (c) to be owned at that time by the beneficiary in respect of the corporation.

Proposed Repeal — 162(10.4)

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 33(5), will repeal subsec. 162(10.4), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to 162(10.1)A(d).

The GSTC provisions were recently amended (S.C. 2002, c. 9, formerly Bill C-49) to make the credit more responsive to changes in family circumstances by providing that the eligibility to the credit and the amount paid in each quarter reflect such changes that occurred before the end of the preceding quarter rather than in the preceding taxation year.

(ii) the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be paid for the year by the person, and

(g) the amount, if any, by which

Proposed Amendment — 163(2.4)(b)

(b) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.2 in respect of a trust, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution of the person or partnership made to the trust before the end of the last taxation year of the trust in respect of which the return is required;

Technical Notes: Subsection 163(2.4) imposes a penalty on any person or partnership that, knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, has made or has participated in, assented to, or acquiesced in, the making of a false statement or omission in a return required to be filed under any of sections 233.1 to 233.6. The penalty under paragraph 163(2.4)(b) relates to a return required to be filed under section 233.2. The existing penalty is the greater of $24,000 and 5% of the total fair market value of the property that the person or partnership loaned or transferred to the trust that gave rise to the obligation to file.

Paragraph 163(2.4)(b) is amended as a consequence of changes made to the non-resident trust rules in section 94 and the annual reporting requirement in respect of non-resident trusts under section 233.2. Under amended section 233.2, a person is subject to the annual reporting requirement where the person makes a "contribution" to the trust.

Accordingly, amended paragraph 163(2.4)(b) provides for a penalty for a person equal the greater of $24,000 and a specified amount in respect of the return. The specified amount for a person is essentially equal to 5% of the fair market value of "contributions" made by the person. The specified amount is calculated in the same way as the specified amount under amended subsection 162(10.1) in respect of late-filed returns. Under new subsection 163(2.41), the definitions and rules in subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) generally apply. Subsection 163(2.41) is similar to amended subsection 233.2(2), described in greater detail in the commentary below.

(c) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.3 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a specified foreign property (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)(a)) of the person or partnership in respect of which the false statement or omission is made;

(d) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a property of the person or partnership that is a share of the capital stock or indebtedness of the foreign affiliate in respect of which the return is being filed; and

(e) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.6 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $2,500, and

(ii) 5% of the total of

(A) all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a property that is distributed to the person or partnership in the year or period by the trust and in respect of which the false statement or omission is made, and

(B) all amounts each of which is the greatest unpaid principal amount of a debt that is owing to the trust by the person or partnership in the year or period and in respect of which the false statement or omission is made.

Proposed Amendment — 163.2(10)

Letter from Department of Finance, July 11, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of February 4, 2000 concerning our meeting of November 4, 1999 regarding the 1999 budget proposal to introduce a civil penalty in respect of misrepresentations of tax matters by third parties. As you may know, the legislation implementing this proposal received Royal Assent on June 29, 2000 (i.e., S.C. 2000, c. 19).

Your letter replies to our request for input from the [xxx] on the appropriate prescribed percentages for the purpose of establishing a deviation range under new subsection 163.2(10) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In your letter, you have indicated that the Institute has concluded that, if a percentage threshold is to-be set by the government, it should be the 200% test adopted by the U.S. under section 6700 of the Internal Revenue Code (the "IRC"). The Institute is also of the view that providing separate prescribed percentages for different industries would be inappropriate because it would be unworkable from a practical perspective — diversifications and business combinations defeat industry classification.

We agree with your observation that it may be impractical to have prescribed percentages that differ for various industries. However, we remain of the view that the deviation range established by prescribed percentages should be narrower than that which would exist under a range that is based upon a 200% standard.

It is our understanding that the U.S. 200% test for gross overstatements results in an automatic application of the penalty under section 6700 of the IRC, subject only to an exception for valuations for which there is a reasonable basis, which were made in good faith and then only if the Secretary of the Treasury waives the penalty under the authority of subsection 6700(b)(2) of the IRC. In contrast, section 163.2 of the Act merely provides a reverse onus. That is to say, in the case of valuations outside of the range, the onus is on the valuator to establish to the Minister of National Revenue or the judiciary that the valuation was reasonable in the circumstances, was made in good faith and was not based on a misleading assumption. The Canadian approach favours Canadian valuators.

The objective of the reverse onus rule in the Canadian provisions is to ensure that valuators and tax shelter promoters justify a substantial deviation from actual value. We would expect that a bona fide professional valuator would be prepared to substantiate that a particular valuation is reasonable in the circumstances (regardless of whether it is, on an ex post facto basis, proven to be inaccurate), that the valuation was made in good faith and that it is not based upon misleading assumptions. In this regard, therefore, it would be inappropriate to permit valuators to refuse to justify valuations that are proven to be inaccurate by a wide margin.

We anticipate a deviation range for all valuations that is narrower than 200%. However, consideration will be given within this parameter as to whether the deviation range for valuations used in a non-tax shelter context should differ from valuations used in a tax-shelter context and, if so, the appropriate percentages. If you wish to make further presentations to the Department on this issue, please contact Mr. Kerry Harnish at (613) 992-4385.

Finally, you should be aware that we intend to recommend that the percentages, which are "prescribed" for the purpose of applying new subsection 163.2(10) of the Act, be effective only for statements made after the day on which they are announced.

Thank you again for bringing your concerns to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(b) a person's gross entitlements at any time in respect of a planning activity or a valuation activity, in the course of which the person makes or furnishes, participates in the making of or causes another person to make or furnish a false statement, shall exclude the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a penalty (other than a penalty the assessment of which is void because of subsection (13)) determined under paragraph (3)(a) in respect of the false statement for which notice of the assessment was sent to the person before that time; and

(c) where a person is assessed a penalty that is referred to in subsection (4), the person's gross compensation at any time in respect of the false statement that could be used by or on behalf of the other person shall exclude the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a penalty (other than a penalty the assessment of which is void because of subsection (13)) determined under subsection (5) to the extent that the false statement was used by or on behalf of that other person and for which notice of the assessment was sent to the person before that time.

(a) subsections (2) to (5) do not apply to the employee to the extent that the false statement could be used by or on behalf of the other person for a purpose of this Act; and

(b) the conduct of the employee is deemed to be that of the other person for the purposes of applying subsection 163(2) to the other person.

Proposed Addition — 164(1.51)–(1.53)

(1.51) Where (1.52) applies — Subsection (1.52) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year if, at any time after the beginning of the year

(a) the taxpayer has, in respect of the tax payable by the taxpayer under this Part (and, if the taxpayer is a corporation, Parts I.3, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1) for the year, paid under any of sections 155 to 157 one or more instalments of tax,

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that the total amount of those instalments exceeds the total amount of taxes that will be payable by the taxpayer under those Parts for the year, and

(c) the Minister is satisfied that the payment of the instalments has caused or will cause undue hardship to the taxpayer.

(1.52) Instalment refund — If this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year, the Minister may refund to the taxpayer all or any part of the excess referred to in paragraph (1.51)(b).

Related Provisions: 164(1.51) — Conditions for 164(1.52) to apply; 164(1.53) — Refunded instalment deemed not paid for penalty/interest purposes.

(1.53) Penalties, interest not affected — For the purpose of the calculation of any penalty or interest under this Act, an instalment is deemed not to have been paid to the extent that all or any part of the instalment can reasonably be considered to have been refunded under subsection (1.52).

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 99(1), will add subsecs. 164(1.51)–(1.53), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: New subsections 164(1.51) to (1.53), which apply on Royal Assent, allow the Minister of National Revenue to refund excessive instalment amounts paid on account of a taxpayer's tax liability. In order for such a refund to be made, four conditions must be met. Three of these are set out in new subsection 164(1.51). First, the taxpayer must have paid one or more instalments of tax under Part I or, where the taxpayer is a corporation, Part I.3, VI, VI.1 or XIII of the Act. Second, it must be reasonable to conclude that the total amount of the instalments the taxpayer has paid exceeds the total amount of taxes payable by the taxpayer under those Parts for the year. Third, the Minister must be satisfied that the payment of the instalments has caused or will cause the taxpayer undue hardship.

The last condition is implied in new subsection 164(1.52). The availability of an instalment refund in a particular case is a matter of the Minister's discretion. The final condition is therefore that the Minister agree to make the refund. Similarly, new subsection 164(1.52) makes it clear that the amount of any instalment refund is to be decided by the Minister: the Minister may refund all or any part of an excessive instalment.

New subsection 164(1.53) provides that, for the purposes of computing interest and penalties, a taxpayer that receives an instalment refund is treated as not having paid the instalment to that extent.

(1.6) Refund of UI premium tax credit — Notwithstanding subsection (1), where an overpayment on account of a taxpayer's liability under this Part is deemed to have arisen under subsection 126.1(6) or (7), the Minister shall, with all due dispatch, refund the amount of the overpayment without application for it.

Proposed Repeal — 164(1.6)

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 99(2), will repeal subsec. 164(1.6), applicable after March 20, 2003.

Technical Notes: Subsection 164(1.6) provides rules concerning refunds of the UI premium tax credit. This subsection is repealed consequential to the repeal of section 126.1. For additional information, see the commentary to section 126.1

Related Provisions: 164(3) — No interest on refund.

History: Subsec. 164(1.6) added by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 27(1), applicable after 1992.

(1.7) Limitation of repayment on objections and appeals — Subsection (1.1) does not apply in respect of an amount paid or security furnished under section 116 by a non-resident person.

History: Subsec. 164(1.7) added by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 164(1.7), applicable from May 12, 1994.

(1.8) Request to pay refund to province — An individual (other than a trust) may, in the individual's return of income for a taxation year, request the Minister to pay to Her Majesty in right of a prescribed province all or any part of a refund for the year claimed by the individual in the return and, where the individual makes such a request,

(a) the Minister may make the payment to Her Majesty in right of the province in accordance with the request; and

(b) the amount of the payment is deemed to have been refunded under this section to the individual at the time a notice of an original assessment of tax payable under this Part by the individual for the year, or a notification that no tax is payable under this Part by the individual for the year, is sent to the individual.

Related Provisions: 241(4)(m) — Disclosure of information by CCRA to prescribed province.

History: Subsec. 164(1.8) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 190(3), applicable to requests made in returns of income for 1997 et seq. taxation years filed after 1997.

Subsec. 190(12) of the said c. 19 provides that for the purpose of applying subsec. 164(1.8), Ontario is deemed to be a prescribed province until the Income Tax Regulations are amended to prescribe a province for the purpose of subsec. 164(1.8).

Regulations: None yet, but subsec. 190(12) of the 1995-97 technical bill (1998, c. 19) deems Ontario to be a prescribed province until Regulations are provided. Ontario is to be prescribed in the Regulations (Department of Finance Technical Notes, December 1997).

(2) Application to other debts — Instead of making a refund or repayment that might otherwise be made under this section, the Minister may, where the taxpayer is, or is about to become, liable to make any payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada or in right of a province, apply the amount of the refund or repayment to that other liability and notify the taxpayer of that action.

PART I.3 — TAX ON LARGE CORPORATIONS

181. (1) Definitions — For the purposes of this Part,

"financial institution", in respect of a taxation year, means a corporation that at any time in the year is

(a) a bank or credit union,

(b) an insurance corporation that carries on business in Canada,

(c) authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on the business of offering its services as a trustee to the public,

(d) authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to accept deposits from the public and carries on the business of lending money on the security of real estate or investing in mortgages or hypothecary claims on real estate,

(e) a registered securities dealer,

(f) a mortgage investment corporation, or

(g) a prescribed corporation;

Proposed Amendment — 181(1)"financial institution"(g)

(g) a corporation

(i) listed in the schedule, or

(ii) all or substantially all of the assets of which are shares or indebtedness of financial institutions to which the corporation is related;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 100, will amend para. (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) to read as above, applicable after December 22, 1997, but in applying the para. in respect of taxation years that end before December 20, 2002, it is to be read as follows:

(g) prescribed, or listed in the schedule;

Technical Notes: Subsection 181(1) sets out definitions for the purposes of the Part I.3 tax on large corporations. Among these is the term "financial institution," which is relevant for a number of purposes. Most importantly, corporations that are financial institutions compute their capital for the purposes of Part I.3 differently from other corporations. The status of a particular corporation is also relevant to corporations that invest in the particular corporation or hold its debt, since whether certain of those investments are counted in the investor corporation's "investment allowance" — and thus whether they will reduce their own tax under Part I.3 — depends, in part, on whether the particular corporation is a financial institution.

In addition to listing several types of corporations, the definition "financial institution" provides, in its paragraph (g), that the definition applies as well to a prescribed corporation. Currently, such corporations are prescribed under section 8604 of the Regulations. Paragraph (a) of that regulation provides that a corporation of which all or substantially all of the assets of which are shares or indebtedness of a financial institution (as defined in subsection 181(1)) to which the corporation is related, is itself prescribed to be a financial institution; the remaining paragraphs list particular corporations by name.

Paragraph (g) of the definition is amended to reflect a fundamental change in the technique by which these corporations will be identified as financial institutions. Rather than listing corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. Amended paragraph (g) therefore refers to corporations that are either listed in the schedule, as per new subparagraph (g)(i), or that are described in new subparagraph (g)(ii), currently paragraph (a) of section 8604 of the Regulations.

As a consequence to the changes to paragraph (g) of the definition, section 8604 of the Regulations is to be repealed and a schedule is added at the end of the Act. Subject to a number of deletions due to name changes and amalgamations, the schedule lists those corporations that are currently prescribed under section 8604 immediately before its repeal. The schedule also lists a number of corporations that are not currently prescribed, but meet the requirements for treatment as financial institutions and have asked to be treated as such.

Transitional rules for paragraph (g) of the definition ensure that corporations prescribed before the repeal of Regulation 8604 retain the status that they would have had under paragraph (g) had it not been amended to exclude prescribed corporations.

As described above, a number of corporations currently not prescribed are listed in the schedule, effective as of dates that precede December 20, 2002. Transitional rules ensure that, for any taxation year that begins before December 20, 2002, no corporation that deals at arm's length with any of these corporations will lose an investment allowance as a result the corporation's change in status to a financial institution under paragraph (g) of the definition.

Related Provisions: 142.2(1)"financial institution"(a)(i), 248(1)"restricted financial institution"(e.1), "specified financial institution"(e.1) — Prescribed corporation under this definition deemed to be FI, RFI and SFI.

History: Para. (d) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 220, to add "or hypothecary claims", in force June 14, 2001.

Para. (e) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, s. 72, applicable to taxation years that end after June 1989. Para. (e) formerly read:

(e) registered or licensed under the laws of a province to trade in securities,

(b) in the case of an insurance corporation, its subordinated indebtedness (within the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Insurance Companies Act) evidenced by obligations issued for a term of not less than 5 years, and

(c) in the case of any other corporation, its subordinated indebtedness (within the meaning that would be assigned by section 2 of the Bank Act if the definition of that expression in that section were applied with such modifications as the circumstances require) evidenced by obligations issued for a term of not less than 5 years, but does not include, where the corporation is a prescribed federal Crown corporation for the purpose of section 27, any indebtedness evidenced by obligations issued to and held by Her Majesty in right of Canada;

History: The definition "long-term debt" in subsec. 181(1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 81, applicable after May 31, 1992. That definition formerly read:

> "long-term debt" means
> (a) in the case of a bank, its indebtedness evidenced by bank debentures within the meaning assigned by the Bank Act, and
> (b) in the case of a financial institution that is not a bank, its subordinate indebtedness evidenced by obligations issued for a term of not less than 5 years (other than, where the financial institution is a prescribed federal Crown corporation for the purposes of section 27, such indebtedness evidenced by obligations issued to and held by Her Majesty in right of Canada);

Related Provisions: 181(4) — Limitations respecting inclusions and deductions.

(3) Capital — The capital of a corporation (other than a financial institution) for a taxation year is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the amount of its capital stock (or, in the case of a corporation incorporated without share capital, the amount of its members' contributions), retained earnings, contributed surplus and any other surpluses at the end of the year,

(b.1) the amount of its deferred unrealized foreign exchange gains at the end of the year,

(c) the amount of all loans and advances to the corporation at the end of the year,

(d) the amount of all indebtedness of the corporation at the end of the year represented by bonds, debentures, notes, mortgages, hypothecary claims, banker's acceptances or similar obligations,

Proposed Amendment — 181.2(3)(g)(i)

(i) the total of all amounts (other than amounts owing to the member or to other corporations that are members of the partnership) that would, if this paragraph and paragraphs (b) to (d) and (f) applied to partnerships in the same way that they apply to corporations, be determined under those paragraphs in respect of the partnership at the end of its last fiscal period that ends at or before the end of the year

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 101(1), will amend subpara. 181.2(3)(g)(i) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

In applying paras. 181.2(4)(b), (c) and (d.1) to a particular corporation in respect of an asset that is a loan or an advance to, or an obligation of, another corporation or partnership that the particular corporation holds at the end of a taxation year of the particular corporation that began before December 20, 2002, those paragraphs are to be read without reference to the expressions "(other than a financial institution)" and "(other than financial institutions)" if, at the end of the taxation year

(a) the particular corporation deals at arm's length with the other corporation or the partnership, as the case may be; and

(b) the other corporation is a financial institution, or the partnership is not a partnership described in para. 181.2(4)(d.1), as the case may be, solely because of s. 100 and subsecs. 124(1) and (3).

Technical Notes: Section 181.2 is amended in two respects. First, subsections 181.2(3) and (5) are amended to clarify the effect of tiered partnerships: structures in which one partnership is a member of another partnership. Second, an amendment is made to subsection 181.2(3) to accommodate a change to the accounting presentation of redeemable preferred shares.

Tiered Partnerships

Subsection 181.2(3) defines the "capital" of a corporation, and in paragraph 181.2(3)(g) includes in a corporation's capital a pro-rata share of the reserves, deferred foreign exchange gains and indebtedness of any partnership of which it is a member. To determine those amounts, the relevant paragraphs of subsection 181.2(3) are applied to the partnership in the same way as they apply to corporations. Paragraph 181.2(3)(g) is amended so that it itself applies on this basis. As a result, the proration of the reserve, deferred gain and debt amounts will carry through any number of tiered partnerships.

Subsection 181.2(4) provides for the "investment allowance" by which, in broad terms, one corporation's investment in another is excluded from the first corporation's taxable capital. Subsection 181.2(5) determines the carrying value of an interest of a corporation in a partnership for this purpose. Subsection 181.2(5) is amended to ensure that the carrying value of an interest of a corporation in a particular partnership, for the purposes of subsection 181.2(4), includes the carrying value of an interest of the particular partnership in another partnership.

These changes to paragraph 181.2(3)(g) and subsection 181.2(5) apply after December 20, 2002.

Preferred Shares

In general, a corporation's tax payable under Part I.3 of the Act is computed with reference to amounts reflected in the balance sheet of the corporation, as prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP).

The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Handbook (the Handbook), which is the principal authority of GAAP in Canada, requires that a liability of a corporation in respect of a redeemable preferred share be reflected on the corporation's balance sheet. The Handbook provides that this liability may be accounted for in one of two ways. Under the first method, the difference between the stated capital of a share and its redemption value is charged to retained earnings, which in some cases may result in the corporation having negative retained earnings or a deficit. Retained earnings are unaffected under the second method, under which a line account is set up reflecting the redemption liability of the preferred shares.

Current paragraph 181.2(3)(i) allows for a reduction of a corporation's capital, to the extent of any deficit deducted in computing the corporation's shareholders' equity. To accommodate the alternative presentation of a provision for the redemption of preferred shares, the paragraph is amended to refer explicitly to the amount of such a provision.

(ii) the amount of the partnership's deferred unrealized foreign exchange losses at the end of that period that the member's share of the partnership's income or loss for that period is of the partnership's income or loss for that period

exceeds the total of

(h) the amount of its deferred tax debit balance at the end of the year,

(i) the amount of any deficit deducted in computing its shareholders' equity at the end of the year, and

Proposed Amendment — 181.2(3)(i)

(i) the amount of any deficit deducted in computing its shareholders' equity (including, for this purpose, the amount of any provision for the redemption of preferred shares) at the end of the year,

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 101(2), will amend para. 181.2(3)(i) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

In applying paras. 181.2(4)(b), (c) and (d.1) to a particular corporation in respect of an asset that is a loan or an advance to, or an obligation of, another corporation or partnership that the particular corporation holds at the end of a taxation year of the particular corporation that began before December 20, 2002, those paragraphs are to be read without reference to the expressions "(other than a financial institution)" and "(other than financial institutions)" if, at the end of the taxation year

(a) the particular corporation deals at arm's length with the other corporation or the partnership, as the case may be; and

(b) the other corporation is a financial institution, or the partnership is not a partnership described in para. 181.2(4)(d.1), as the case may be, solely because of s. 100 and subsecs. 124(1) and (3).

Technical Notes: See under 181.2(3)(g)(i).

(j) any amount deducted under subsection 135(1) in computing its income under Part I for the year, to the extent that the amount can reasonably be regarded as being included in the amount determined under any of paragraphs (a) to (g) in respect of the corporation for the year.

(k) the amount of its deferred unrealized foreign exchange losses at the end of the year.

Possible Future Amendment — Joint debt

Letter from Department of Finance, August 6, 1997:

Dear [xxx]

This is in response to your memorandum dated July 29, 1997 respecting the application of the Large Corporation Tax (LCT) to joint debt. You are concerned that joint debt may be fully taxed in the hands of each co-borrower under the LCT, even though the advance is divided among those borrowers. Using the example provided in your note, a joint debt in the amount of $400 million might be shared so that one party is advanced $100 million and the other, $300 million. You believe that the aggregate addition to capital in respect of the debt should be $400 million for the two borrowers; your concern is that, under the current law, each of them would be required to add $400 million to capital with the result that a total of $800 million would be subject to LCT.

Your concern is based on the current wording of subsection 181(3) of the Act, which provides that, "except as otherwise provided under this Part", the amounts to be used in calculating LCT are those set out on the taxpayer's balance sheet, prepared in accordance with GAAP. You feel that the definition of capital in paragraph 181.2(3) of the Act "provides otherwise" for these purposes, and hence, that the amounts set out on the balance sheet may not be relevant.

As you have described it, GAAP currently provides that only the portion of a jointly-incurred debt that is actually advanced to a borrower is recorded as a liability on the balance sheet. A note to the balance sheet indicates the full value of the joint debt in order to disclose the legal liability of the borrower for that part of the debt that was not received by that borrower. If subsection 181(3) applies, you reason that the taxpayers in your example would be taxed on $100 million and $300 million in capital respectively. If subsection 181(3) does not apply, each taxpayer would be taxed on the full amount of their legal indebtedness, being $400 million.

In our view, the definition of capital in subsection 181.2(3) of the Act does not constitute an exception to the application of subsection 181(3) of the Act. Rather, our intention — which we believe to be reflected in the existing legislation — is that subsection 181(3) apply to use the amounts reflected in a borrower's balance sheet to quantify the amounts included in its capital.

That being said, there may be a risk of double-counting in the application of the LCT to jointly-incurred debt. As notes to the financial statements are an integral part of the balance sheet, there is a possibility that the amount set out in the notes would be assessed as the corporation's capital in respect of a joint debt. If this were to occur, each co-borrower under a joint debt would be taxed for the full amount of the debt, irrespective of the amount actually advanced to that borrower.

In principle, we agree that the amount of a joint debt should only be taxed once, and we hope to discuss this matter further with Revenue Canada officials to determine whether that result can be achieved under the current law. If that proves unsuccessful, we are prepared to consider legislative changes to ensure this outcome. As noted, GAAP currently allocates joint debt based on the amount of cash advanced to each co-borrower — for LCT purposes, other factors may be relevant in making such an allocation. If a change to the law should prove necessary, we would be pleased [to] have your views in this respect.

If you would like to discuss this matter in more detail, please feel free to contact Robin Maley (992-4859) or Brian Ernewein (992-3045) of the Division directly.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 102(1), will amend subpara. 181.3(3)(a)(v) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Technical Notes: Section 181.3 provides rules for determining the capital, taxable capital, taxable capital employed in Canada and investment allowance of a financial institution (as defined in subsection 181(1)) for the purposes of the Part I.3 tax on large corporations.

Section 181.3 is amended in two respects. First, changes are made to several paragraphs of subsection 181.3(3) to accommodate a change to the accounting presentation of redeemable preferred shares. Second, a new subparagraph and a new clause are added to paragraph 181.3(3)(c) to reflect the manner in which property and casualty insurers are required to account for claims reserves.

Preferred Shares

The accounting procedures described in the notes to amended section 181.2 are relevant to financial institutions as well as to other corporations, and readers may consult those notes for additional background. As in that section, the amendments introduced to section 181.3 include, in the computation of a deficit deducted in computing shareholders' equity, the amount of any provision for the redemption of preferred shares. This inclusion is added to three specific provisions: subparagraph 181.3(3)(a)(v) in respect of financial institutions other than insurers and authorized foreign banks; subparagraph 181.3(3)(b)(iv) in respect of Canadian-resident life insurance corporations; and subparagraph 181.3(3)(c)(v) in respect of other Canadian-resident insurance companies.

Claims Reserves

In general, a corporation is required to compute amounts relevant in determining its tax payable under Part I.3 of the Act using generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP).

The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Handbook (the Handbook), which is the principle [sic] authority of GAAP in Canada, requires that property and casualty insurers account for claims reserves on a gross basis, rather than net of reinsurance.

Paragraphs 181.3(3)(c) and (d) of the Act stipulate the amounts to be included in determining the capital of an insurance corporation resident in Canada (other than a life insurance corporation) and an insurance corporation not resident in Canada, respectively. Among other things, claims reserves are required under these paragraphs to be included in computing the capital of such a corporation.

New subparagraph 181.3(3)(c)(vii) and clause 181.3(3)(d)(iv)(F) allow such corporations to reduce their capital by an amount that is recoverable through reinsurance, to the extent that the amount relates to an amount that was included in capital as a claims reserve. In this way, claims reserves are included on a net of reinsurance basis under paragraphs 181.3(3)(c) and (d).

(vi) any amount deducted under subsection 130.1(1) or 137(2) in computing its income under Part I for the year, to the extent that the amount can reasonably be regarded as being included in the amount determined under subparagraph (i), (ii) or (iii) in respect of the institution for the year;

(b) in the case of an insurance corporation that was resident in Canada at any time in the year and carried on a life insurance business at any time in the year, the amount, if any, by which the total at the end of the year of

(i) the amount of its long-term debt, and

(ii) the amount of its capital stock (or, in the case of an insurance corporation incorporated without share capital, the amount of its members' contributions), retained earnings, contributed surplus and any other surpluses

exceeds the total of

(iii) the amount of its deferred tax debit balance at the end of the year, and

(iv) the amount of any deficit deducted in computing its shareholders' equity at the end of the year;

Proposed Amendment — 181.3(3)(b)(iv)

(iv) the amount of any deficit deducted in computing its shareholders' equity (including, for this purpose, the amount of any provision for the redemption of preferred shares) at the end of the year;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 102(2), will amend subpara. 181.3(3)(b)(iv) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Technical Notes: See under 181.3(3)(a)(v).

(c) in the case of an insurance corporation that was resident in Canada at any time in the year and throughout the year did not carry on a life insurance business, the amount, if any, by which the total at the end of the year of

(i) the amount of its long-term debt,

(ii) the amount of its capital stock (or, in the case of an insurance corporation incorporated without share capital, the amount of its members' contributions), retained earnings, contributed surplus and any other surpluses, and

(iii) the amount of its reserves for the year, except to the extent that they were deducted in computing its income under Part I for the year,

exceeds the total of

be regarded as being included in the amount determined under subparagraph (iii) in respect of a claims reserve;

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, subsec. 102(4), will add subpara. 181.3(3)(c)(vii), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

PART II.1 — TAX ON CORPORATE DISTRIBUTIONS

183.1 (1) Application of Part — This Part applies to a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation) for a taxation year in which the corporation, at any time in the year,

(a) was a public corporation; or

(b) was resident in Canada and had a class of shares outstanding that were purchased and sold in the manner in which such shares normally are purchased and sold by any member of the public in the open market.

(2) Tax payable — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events,

(a) a corporation, or any person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, has, at any time, paid an amount, directly or indirectly, to any person as proceeds of disposition of any property, and

(b) all or any portion of the amount may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, to have been paid as a substitute for dividends that would otherwise have been paid in the normal course by the corporation, the corporation shall, on or before its balance-due day for its taxation year that includes that time, pay tax of 45% of that amount or portion of it, as the case may be.

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions.

History: The closing words of subsec. 183.1(2) amended by 2003, c. 15, s. 119, applicable to taxation years that begin after June 2003. The closing words formerly read:

the corporation shall, on or before the day on or before which it is required to file its return of income under Part I for its taxation year that includes that time, pay a tax of 45% of that amount or portion thereof, as the case may be.

(3) Stock dividend — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events,

(a) a share was issued by a corporation as a stock dividend and the amount of the stock dividend was less than the fair market value of the share at the time that it was issued, and

(b) the share or any other share of the capital stock of the corporation was purchased, directly or indirectly, by the corporation, or by a person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, for an amount in excess of its paid-up capital, that excess shall, for the purposes of subsection (2), be deemed to have been paid as a substitute for dividends that would otherwise have been paid in the normal course by the corporation.

(4) Purchase of shares — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events,

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation was purchased, directly or indirectly, by the corporation, or any person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, and

(b) any portion of the amount paid for the share may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, as consideration for a dividend that had been declared, but not yet paid, on the share, that portion of the amount shall, for the purposes of subsection (2), be deemed to have been paid as a substitute for dividends that would otherwise have been paid in the normal course by the corporation notwithstanding that the dividend was actually paid thereafter.

(5) Indirect payment — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events, a person received a payment from a corporation, or from any person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, in consideration, in whole or in part, for paying an amount to any other person as proceeds of disposition of any property, the corporation shall, for the purposes of subsection (2), be deemed to have paid the amount indirectly to the other person.

(6) Where subsec. (2) does not apply — Subsection (2) does not apply if none of the purposes of the transaction or series of transactions or events referred to therein may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, to have been to enable shareholders of a corporation who are individuals or non-resident persons to receive an amount, directly or indirectly, as proceeds of disposition of property rather than as a dividend on a share that was of a class that was listed on a stock exchange or that was purchased and sold in the manner in which shares are normally purchased and sold by any member of the public in the open market.

(7) Where subsec. 110.6(8) does not apply — Where this section has been applied in respect of an amount, subsection 110.6(8) does not apply to the capital gain in respect of which the amount formed all or a part of the proceeds of disposition.

Part III — Additional Tax on Excessive Elections

184. (1) [Repealed under former Act]

(2) Tax on excessive elections — Where a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of the full amount of any dividend payable by it on shares of any class of its capital stock and the full amount of the dividend exceeds the portion thereof deemed by that subsection to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at the time of the election, pay a tax under this Part equal to 3/4 of the excess.

Proposed Amendment — 184(2)

(2) Tax on excessive elections — If a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of the full amount of any dividend payable by it on shares of any class of its capital stock (in this section referred to as the "original dividend") and the full amount of the original dividend exceeds the portion of the original dividend deemed by that subsection to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at the time of the election, pay a tax under this Part equal to 3/5 of the excess.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 103, will amend subsec. 184(2) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Under section 83, a private corporation can identify a dividend as a "capital dividend," with the result that the dividend is not taxable to the shareholders who receive it. In concept, a capital dividend is a distribution of the non-taxable portion of the corporation's capital gains, which portion is recorded in the corporation's "capital dividend account". A similar mechanism allows mutual fund corporations and mortgage investment corporations to designate a dividend as a "capital gains dividend" — which is taxable to the shareholder, but as a capital gain.

Part III of the Act (sections 184 and 185) applies a special tax to a corporation that designates as a capital dividend or a capital gains dividend an amount that exceeds the amount available to be paid as such a dividend. If the corporation obtains the consent of its shareholders, it can avoid the special tax by treating the excess amount as a separate taxable dividend.

These amendments simplify Part III and update its language, reduce the rate of the special tax, and modify the requirement for shareholder consent to the recharacterization of an excessive dividend. These amendments apply to dividends that are paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year, with a special transitional rule for elections, described below in the notes to subsection 184(5).

Subsection 184(2) applies the tax under Part III of the Act to the amount by which a dividend paid by a corporation as a capital dividend or a capital gains dividend exceeds the amount eligible to be so designated. For greater clarity, the subsection is amended to refer to the full amount of the initial dividend as the "original dividend." That term is then used elsewhere in amended Part III.

The rate of tax imposed by subsection 184(2) is also changed, as part of a series of amendments that reflect recent and planned reductions in tax rates. The rate is reduced from 75% of the excess capital gains dividend to 60% of the excess.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(t) — Tax is non-deductible; 87(2)(z.2) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 184(3) — Election to treat excess as a separate dividend.

(2.1) Reduction of excess — Notwithstanding subsection (2), where a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2) in respect of the full amount of a dividend that became payable by it at a particular time in its 1988 taxation year and before June 18, 1987, the amount of the excess referred to in subsection (2) in respect of the dividend shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (2), to be the amount of the excess that would have been determined under subsection (2) in respect of the dividend if the corporation's taxation year had ended on December 31, 1987.

Proposed Repeal — 184(2.1)

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 103, will repeal subsec. 184(2.1), applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 184(2.1) is a transitional rule that applies to certain dividends that became payable before June 18, 1987. That subsection has lapsed and is repealed.

(3) Election to treat excess as separate dividend — Where, in respect of a dividend payable at a particular time after 1971, a corporation would, but for this subsection, be required to pay a tax under this Part equal to all or a portion of an excess referred to in subsection (2) of this section or subsection 184(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, it may elect in prescribed manner on or before a day that is not later than 90 days after the day that is the later of December 15, 1977 and the day of mailing of the notice of assessment in respect of the tax that would otherwise be payable under this Part, and on such an election being made, subject to subsection (4), the following rules apply:

(a) the amount by which the full amount of the dividend exceeds the amount of the excess shall be deemed for the purposes of the election that the corporation made in respect of the dividend under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) of this Act or subsection 83(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and for all other purposes of this Act to be the full amount of a separate dividend that became payable at the particular time;

(b) such part of the excess as the corporation may claim shall, for the purposes of any election in respect thereof under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) of this Act or subsection 83(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and, where the corporation has so elected, for all purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the full amount of a separate dividend that became payable immediately after the particular time;

(c) the amount by which the excess exceeds any portion deemed by paragraph (b) to be a separate dividend for all purposes of this Act shall be deemed to be a separate dividend that is a taxable dividend that became payable at the particular time; and

(d) each person who held any of the issued shares of the class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation in respect of which the full amount of the dividend was paid shall be deemed

(i) not to have received any portion of the dividend, and

(ii) to have received at the time the dividend was paid the proportion of any separate dividend, determined under paragraph (a), (b) or (c), that the number of shares of that class held by the person at the time the dividend was paid is of the number of shares of that class outstanding at that time except that, for the purpose of Part XIII, a separate dividend that is a taxable dividend, a capital dividend or a life insurance capital dividend shall be deemed to have been paid on the day that the election in respect of this subsection is made.

Proposed Amendment — 184(3)

(3) Election to treat excess as separate dividend — If, in respect of an original dividend payable at a particular time, a corporation would, but for this subsection, be required to pay a tax under this Part in respect of an excess referred to in subsection (2), and the corporation elects in prescribed manner on or before the day that is 90 days after the day of mailing of the notice of assessment in respect of the tax that would otherwise be payable under this Part, the following rules apply:

(a) the portion of the original dividend deemed by subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, is deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the amount of a separate dividend that became payable at the particular time;

(b) if the corporation identifies in its election any part of the excess, that part is, for the purposes of any election under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of that part, and, where the corporation has so elected, for all purposes of this Act, deemed to be the amount of a separate dividend that became payable immediately after the particular time;

(c) the amount by which the excess exceeds any portion deemed by paragraph (b) to be a separate dividend for all purposes of this Act is deemed to be a separate taxable dividend that became payable at the particular time; and

(d) each person who held any of the issued shares of the class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation in respect of which the original dividend was paid is deemed

(i) not to have received any portion of the original dividend, and

(ii) to have received, at the time that any separate dividend determined under any of paragraphs (a) to (c) became payable, the proportion of that dividend that the number of shares of that class held by the person at the particular time is of the number of shares of that class outstanding at the particular time except that, for the purpose of Part XIII, the separate dividend is deemed to be paid on the day that the election in respect of this subsection is made.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 103, will amend subsec. 184(3) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 184(3) allows a corporation that would otherwise be liable to tax under Part III in respect of an excessive capital dividend or capital gains dividend to treat the excess as a separate taxable dividend, and thus to avoid the tax. The subsection is amended to update and clarify its language.

(3.1) Election to treat dividend as loan — Where a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, in respect of the full amount of any dividend that became payable by it at a particular time after March 31, 1977 and before 1979 and the corporation made a reasonable attempt to correctly determine its tax-paid undistributed surplus on hand immediately before the particular time and its 1971 capital surplus on hand immediately before the particular time and all or any portion of the dividend

(a) has given rise to a gain from the disposition of a share of the corporation by virtue of subsection 40(3), or

(b) is an excess referred to in subsection 184(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, if the corporation so elects under this subsection,

(c) in any case referred to in paragraph (a), not later than December 31, 1982 or such earlier day as is 90 days after the latest of and the penalty referred to in subsection (5) in respect of the election is paid by the corporation at the time the election is made, the following rules apply:

(e) the whole dividend or such portion of it as the corporation may claim shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed not to be a dividend but to be a loan made at the particular time by the corporation to the persons who received all or any portion of the dividend if the full amount of the loan is repaid to the corporation before such date as is stipulated by the Minister and the corporation satisfies such terms and conditions as are specified by the Minister, and

(f) sections 15 and 80.4 do not apply to such a loan.

(4) Concurrence with election — An election under subsection (3) is not valid unless

(a) it is made with the concurrence of the corporation and all its shareholders

(i) who received or were entitled to receive all or any portion of the dividend in respect of which a tax would, but for subsection (3), be payable under this Part, and

(ii) whose addresses were known to the corporation; and

(b) either

(i) it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the dividend became payable, or

(ii) each shareholder described in subparagraph (a)(i) concurs with the election, in which case, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessment of the tax, interest and penalties payable by each such shareholder for any taxation year may be made as is necessary to take the corporation's election into account.

Proposed Amendment — 184(4)

(4) Concurrence with election — An election under subsection (3) is valid only if

(a) it is made with the concurrence of the corporation and all its shareholders

(i) who received or were entitled to receive all or any portion of the original dividend, and

(ii) whose addresses were known to the corporation; and

(b) either

(i) it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the original dividend became payable, or

(ii) each shareholder described in subparagraph (a)(i) concurs with the election, in which case, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the tax, interest and penalties payable by each of those shareholders for any taxation year may be made that is necessary to take the corporation's election into account.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 103, will amend subsec. 184(4) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 184(4) sets out the requirements for shareholders' consent to the recharacterization, under subsection 184(3), of an excessive capital dividend or capital gains dividend. This subsection is amended to update and clarify its language.

Related Provisions: 185 — Assessment of tax.

(5) Penalty — The penalty in respect of an election under subsection (3.1) or (3.2) in relation to a particular dividend is an amount equal to the product obtained when $500 is multiplied by the proportion that the number of months or parts of months during the period commencing on the day the dividend became payable and ending on the day on which that election was made is of 12.

Proposed Amendment — 184(5)

(5) Exception for non-taxable shareholders — If each person who, in respect of an election made under subsection (3), is deemed by subsection (3) to have received a dividend at a particular time is also, at the particular time, a person all of whose taxable income is exempt from tax under Part I,

(a) subsection (4) does not apply to the election; and

(b) the election is valid only if it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the original dividend became payable.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 103, will amend subsec. 184(5) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year except that, for the purpose of subsec. 184(5), as amended, an election made before the 90th day after the amending legislation is assented to is deemed to have been made in a timely manner.

Technical Notes: New subsection 184(5) provides an exception to the shareholder consent requirements of subsection 184(4). Where a corporation wishes to recharacterize an excessive dividend under subsection 184(3), and the dividend was paid on a class of shares all of the holders of which are persons all of whose taxable income is exempt from tax (for example, registered plans), the corporation need not obtain the shareholders' consent. Instead, the only requirement imposed by new subsection 184(5) is that the corporation's election be made within 30 months after the time that the original (excessive) dividend became payable.

An election under new subsection 184(5) will be deemed to have been made in a timely manner if it is made within 90 days after these amendments receive Royal Assent.

Proposed Amendment — 186.1(b)(vii)

Letter from Department of Finance, January 18, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in response to your letter of May 25, 2001 and subsequent telephone conversations between you, [xxx], and Sanjeev Sivarulrasa of this Division. You have requested that we consider recommending an amendment to the Income Tax Act (Act) to take into account the demutualization of the Toronto Stock Exchange (TSE) as of April 3, 2000, in which "member firms" were converted to "participating organizations".

As I understand it, your concern has to do with the current wording of subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii), which exempts from Part IV tax a corporation that is "a registered securities dealer that was throughout the year a member of a prescribed stock exchange in Canada." Since demutualization of the TSE, "member firms" are now "participating organizations", and it is unclear whether the current wording of subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii) will continue to exempt from Part IV tax a registered securities dealer that is a "participating organization" of the TSE.

As you know, your request raised a number of potential issues, and we considered it important to review in this context the not-for-profit status of the TSE, the fact that its demutualization has now made it a for-profit corporation, and the appropriate tax treatment of any dividends that the TSE might have paid to its members after its demutualization. In the end, we have concluded that, since a "participating organization" of the TSE will have to meet the same qualifications as a "member firm", a registered securities dealer that is a participating organization ought to be exempt from Part IV tax. Accordingly, we will recommend that subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii) be amended as you request, effective April 3, 2000.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a) pay a tax under this Part for the year equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B - C - D - E - F$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of an asset of the charity on the day (in this section referred to as the "valuation day") that is 120 days before the day on which

(i) the notice of the Minister's intention to revoke the charity's registration is mailed, if the registration is revoked under subsection 168(2), or

(ii) the charity is, under subsection 5(1) of the Charities Registration (Security Information) Act, served with a copy of a certificate, if the registration is revoked under subsection 168(3).

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in the

Proposed Amendment — 188(1)(a)B

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the eligible amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in the period (in this section referred to as the "winding-up period") that begins on the valuation day and ends immediately before the payment day, or an amount received by it in the winding-up period from a registered charity,

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 104, will amend the description of B in the formula in para. 188(1)(a) to read as above, applicable to gifts made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 188(1) imposes a tax payable by a registered charity in respect of the revocation of the charity's registration. The tax is generally equal to the total of the value of the assets of the charity plus the amount of receipted donations and inter-charity gifts received by the charity after the "valuation day" of the charity's assets, net of certain eligible disbursements.

Subsection 188(1) is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(30), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to refer to the "eligible amount" of a gift for which a receipt was issued by the charity. For additional information, see the commentary to new subsection 248(30).

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time of the transfer, of an asset transferred by it in the winding-up period to a qualified donee,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is expended by it in the winding-up period on charitable activities carried on by it,

E is the total of all amounts each of which is paid by it in the winding-up period in respect of its debts that were outstanding on the valuation day and not included in determining the value of D, and

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reasonable expense incurred by it in the winding-up period and not included in determining the value of D; and

(b) file with the Minister a return in prescribed form and containing prescribed information, without notice or demand therefor.

As in that section, the amendments introduced to section 190.13 include, in the computation of a deficit deducted in computing shareholders' equity, the amount of any provision for the redemption of preferred shares. This inclusion is added to two specific provisions: subparagraph 190.13(a)(v), in respect of financial institutions other than life insurers and authorized foreign banks; and subparagraph 190.13(b)(iv) in respect of Canadian-resident life insurance corporations.

Proposed Addition — 191(6)

(6) Excluded dividend — partner — If at any time a corporation pays a dividend to a partnership, the corporation is, for the purposes of this subsection and paragraph (a) of the definition "excluded dividend" in subsection (1), deemed to have paid at that time to each member of the partnership a dividend equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the dividend paid to the partnership; and

B is the member's specified proportion for the last fiscal period of the partnership that ended before that time (or, if the partnership's first fiscal period includes that time, for that first fiscal period).

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 106, will add subsec. 191(6), applicable to dividends paid after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 191 sets out a number of rules relating to the taxes imposed, under Part VI.1 of the Act, on taxable Canadian corporations that pay dividends of certain kinds. Those taxes are not payable in respect of "excluded dividends," a term defined in subsection 191(1). Dividends paid by a corporation to a shareholder that holds a "substantial interest" in the corporation are excluded dividends.

"Substantial interest" is itself defined in subsection 191(2). In general, a shareholder has a substantial interest in a corporation if the shareholder is related to the corporation (otherwise than because of a right under paragraph 251(5)(b)) or if the shareholder's holdings meet certain thresholds in terms of votes and value.

If a shareholder has a substantial interest in a corporation, and is also a member of a partnership that holds shares of the corporation, it is appropriate that a dividend paid by the corporation to the partnership be an excluded dividend, to the extent of the shareholder's interest in the dividend. To ensure this result, new subsection 191(6) is added to the rules that govern the Part VI taxes. The new subsection provides that a dividend paid to a partnership is, for the purposes of the "excluded dividend" definition, considered to have been paid ratably to each member of the partnership.

Three technical aspects of the new rule bear special mention. First, the apportionment of the dividend among the partners is based upon each partner's share of the partnership's income for its last fiscal period that ended before the corporation paid the dividend. (If the dividend was paid during the partnership's first fiscal period, the apportionment looks to that period.)

Second, to ensure appropriate effects where there is more than one tier of partnerships between the dividend-paying corporation and the person that holds a substantial interest in the corporation, the new provision applies to itself. That is, if a member of a partnership is itself a partnership, the rule will treat the dividend-paying corporation as having paid a proportionate amount as a dividend not only to the second partnership, but also to that second partnership's members.

Third, in apportioning a dividend among members of a partnership, new subsection 191(6) uses the new definition of "specified proportion," which is added to subsection 248(1). For further information, see the commentary to that amendment.

191.1 (1) Tax on taxable dividends — Every taxable Canadian corporation shall pay a tax under this Part for each taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of

(i) 66⅔% of the amount, if any, by which the total of all taxable dividends (other than excluded dividends) paid by the corporation in the year and after 1987 on short-term preferred shares exceeds the corporation's dividend allowance for the year,

Proposed Amendment — 191.1(1)(a)(i)

(i) 50% of the amount, if any, by which the total of all taxable dividends (other than excluded dividends) paid by the corporation in the year on short-term preferred shares exceeds the corporation's dividend allowance for the year,

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft legislation, s. 107, will amend subpara. 191.1(1)(a)(i) to read as above, applicable to dividends paid by a corporation in 2003 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 191.1(1) provides for a tax to be paid by a corporation that has paid taxable dividends on taxable preferred shares. In the case of short-term preferred shares, paragraph 191.1(1)(a) sets the rate of the tax at 66 ⅔% of the dividend. This rate produces an amount of tax equal to the amount of income tax that would have been collected had a corporate shareholder sought the same after-tax return in the form of interest. That result obtains, at the current 66 ⅔ percent rate, if interest income is assumed to be taxed at 40%.

As part of a series of amendments reflecting recent and planned reductions in income tax rates, the rate of tax under paragraph 191.1(1)(a) is reduced to 50%of the dividend amount. This provides the desired result on the basis of an assumed tax of 33.3% on interest income, as shown below.

Letter from Department of Finance, August 2, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of July 31, 2002, regarding the rates of tax imposed under Part VI.1 of the Income Tax Act and the treatment, under Part I of the Act, of amounts paid under Part VI.1. Specifically, you have asked for written confirmation of this Division's intention to recommend certain changes in both of these areas. You have emphasized that this matter is of pressing concern for your client, and we have accordingly given your enquiry some priority.

This will confirm that we do intend to propose such changes, as part of a series of technical measures designed to reflect recent and planned reductions in corporate income tax rates. Our recommendation in respect of Part VI.1 will be that the rate of tax imposed by subparagraph 191.l(1)(a)(i) be reduced from 66⅔% to 50%. Complementing this, we will recommend that the factor to be applied in computing the deduction for Part I purposes [110(1)(k) — ed.] in respect of Part VI.1 taxes be adjusted from ¾ to 3. Both of these measures would apply for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years.

As you know, I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will endorse these proposals. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our intentions is helpful.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch
